THE HISTORY SUCCESS KIT
High School History Resources for the Ohio Graduation Test

www.montgomery.k12.oh.us/history/ogt
Dear History and Social Studies Educator:

The Miami Valley Teaching American History Project is pleased to bring you these resources to help your students with the history portion of the Ohio Graduation Test.

We've designed The History Success Kit for use by an OGT intervention teacher, either in the summer months or during the school year. All the resources are aligned to the Ohio Academic Content Standards for social studies.

The History Success Kit includes:

- A CD-ROM with OGT practice tests, the History Word Whiz game, and printable files of all kit content
- An Ohio Academic Content Standards cross key
- Overviews and timelines for the six historical eras on the test
- Worksheets and answer keys for each era
- A vocabulary glossary of words used on the OGT
- Vocabulary flash cards

You can easily customize the kit to send materials home with students— or you can use it right in the classroom. The kit includes content for six eras based on over-arching historical questions that address important themes covered by the OGT.

The History Word Whiz is a lively quiz game that will appeal to all your students and runs on most home personal computers, without the need for an Internet connection.

Suggested uses for teachers and students:

- Historical overviews, with expanded timelines, let students focus on key points
- Bolded vocabulary words in overviews allow students to check definitions in the glossary
- Worksheets allow students to practice extended multiple choice and extended response questions, and view real student sample responses
- Worksheets include writing and test-taking tips

These resources are also available on the Web at http://lpdc.montgomery.k12.oh.us/History/index.htm

For questions, comments, or technical support, please contact Mary Anne Kirk at Think™ (Mkirk@thinktv.org). We hope you enjoy using these history resources, and we wish you and your students success!

Sincerely,

Margy Stevens

Enlightenment and Revolution

Teaching American History
The Scientific Revolution of the seventeenth century gave rise to what historians call "Enlightenment Thought" by setting a model for intellectual inquiry through the use of the scientific method. The Enlightenment, also known as the "Age of Reason," blossomed in France in the eighteenth century. The French Enlightenment thinkers, or philosophes, emphasized human reason and logic and explored the ideas of "natural rights" such as equality and liberty. These ideas quickly spread throughout Europe, and the European Enlightenment thinkers began questioning long established political institutions such as absolutism and inherited power as found in monarchies. In addition, they posed challenges to religious authority by stressing reason over a faith-based worldview, through a movement known as Deism. These ideas spread throughout Europe and across the Atlantic Ocean and took root in the American colonies. As with the European Enlightenment, the new schools of thought in the American colonies were primarily limited to the well educated colonists of the upper class.

Many European philosophes, such as the Baron de Montesquieu, who first conceived of the idea of separation of powers within government, thought that change in society must come from above through an "enlightened" ruler. American colonists, however, thought that power should be in the hands of the people and that political change was both necessary and possible. With no native hereditary nobility or peasant class, as in European feudal society, the colonists could more easily envision change coming from below rather than above. The radical, liberal, ideas that were circulating prior to the American Revolution were encouraged and inflamed by a series of taxes imposed on the colonists to help ease the British out of the extreme debt that followed the Seven Years War with France. The American Revolution was a victory for the colonists who overthrew British colonial rule as well as an inspiration for the French Revolution that followed in France a little over a decade later. Later, South American colonies would begin a struggle for independence and liberation from the colonial rule of Spain and Portugal.

Enlightenment thought also informed our economic system. Adam Smith's Wealth of Nations, written in 1776, gave rise to economics as an academic discipline as well as provided the argument for laissez-faire economics, capitalism, free markets, and free trade, which would serve as a model for American economic policy and practice. Enlightenment thought is further reflected in our documents. The Constitution and Bill of Rights clearly reflect the Enlightenment ideas of inherent human rights, equality, and liberty. Sadly, the contentious institution of slavery, which was hotly debated during the Constitutional Convention, was in effect protected by the document that granted so many freedoms to others. Deep divisions over the question of slavery and states' rights during the Constitutional Convention would come to define the issues central to the conflict leading to the Civil War in America nearly a century later.

Enlightenment and Revolution

Standards – History, Government, Citizenship Rights and Responsibilities

1. What century did the Enlightenment begin?
   a. Sixteenth century
   b. Seventeenth century
   c. Eighteenth century
   d. Nineteenth century

2. In his work Leviathan Thomas Hobbes explained reasons and examples of both good and bad governments. Regardless of the rule, Hobbes believed all governments and their citizens had to establish ___________ in order to exist.
   a. Freedom of thought
   b. Separation of powers
   c. Social contracts
   d. Freedom of religion

3. Enlightenment thinkers believed there were improvements to be made in the area of government. One concept in government that was challenged during the Enlightenment was the idea of:
   a. Divine right of kings
   b. Only men could efficiently rule a nation
   c. Women could vote in elections
   d. Children had natural rights

4. Enlightenment thinkers were called:
   a. Philosophes
   b. Radicals
   c. Reformers
   d. Socialists

5. Montesquieu believed that to prevent tyranny in government there should be separation of powers. Which of the following best illustrates this idea?
   a. Absolute power in the executive branch
   b. Total power in the legislative branch
   c. Dividing power among three branches of government
   d. Splitting power among three or more countries

Bring at least two pens/pencils with good erasers to the test.
Enlightenment and Revolution

Standards – History, Government

1. During the Enlightenment, new ideas of government emerged which challenged existing governments. One form of government challenged was an absolute monarchy. Absolute monarchies still exist today in the countries of Saudi Arabia, Brunei, and Swaziland. The best definition of an absolute monarchy is:
   a. A hereditary ruler which has limits on her/his power
   b. A system of government in which political control is exercised by all the people, either directly or through their elected representatives
   c. A system of government headed by a religious leader
   d. A hereditary ruler controls all of the functions of government

2. Presently, the countries of the United Kingdom, Japan, and Spain have a form of government in which their head of state is a hereditary position and is limited by a set of laws and rules. This type of government is referred to as:
   a. Absolute monarchy
   b. Dictatorship
   c. Constitutional monarchy
   d. Presidential democracy

3. The present countries of Iran, Saudi Arabia, and Vatican City are ruled by a government in which a religion and the government are intertwined. This type of government is called:
   a. Absolute monarchy
   b. Dictatorship
   c. Parliamentary democracy
   d. Theocracy

4. Historically, several countries have been ruled under a dictatorship. This is a government headed by a dictator, or more generally any authoritarian or totalitarian government. Which of the following countries would be an example of a twentieth century dictatorship?
   a. Nazi Germany led by Adolph Hitler
   b. Soviet Union led by Josef Stalin
   c. Cuba led by Fidel Castro
   d. United Kingdom led by Elizabeth II

5. Several countries operate as a presidential democracy. For example the United States, Mexico, and Brazil all are presidential democracies. Under this type of government the main role of the president is both head of state and head of government. The president cannot introduce bills or vote in the:
   a. Legislature
   b. Executive branch
   c. Local elections
   d. State elections
1. The large majority of Enlightenment thinkers were from the countries of:
   a. Germany and France
   b. France and Russia
   c. Russia and England
   d. France and England

2. New economic theories were advanced by the Enlightenment period. The physiocrats — economic theorists — applied the idea of natural law to economics. They believed that with less government influence, businesses would thrive and grow. This economic policy is called:
   a. Laissez-Faire
   b. Socialism
   c. Communism
   d. Traditional market

Short Answer — Two points

3. Read the passage below by the Enlightenment thinker Immanuel Kant and answer the question.

   "Have courage to use your own intelligence? That is the motto of the Enlightenment. . . All that is required for this Enlightenment is freedom; and particularly the least harmful of all that may be called freedom, namely, the freedom for man to make public use of his reason in all matters. But I hear people clamor on all sides: "Don't argue?" The officer says: Don't argue, drill?" The tax collector: "Don't argue, pay?" The pastor: "Don't argue, believe?" . . . Here we have restrictions on freedom everywhere. Which restriction is hampering Enlightenment, and which does not, or even promotes it? I answer: The public use of a man's reason must be free at all times, and this alone can bring Enlightenment among men."

   Immanuel Kant, "What is Enlightenment?" 1784

What does Kant believe is necessary in order to spread the ideas of the Enlightenment and why does he believe that people need courage to use their intelligence?
Keep a positive attitude throughout the whole test and try to stay relaxed.

Enlightenment and Revolution

History, Government, Social Studies Skills and Methods

1. John Locke believed that the government had an obligation to the people it governed to protect their natural rights. If a government failed to do this, then the people had the right to:
   a. Overthrow the government
   b. Complain privately but not publicly
   c. Nothing
   d. Move to another country

2. Which of the following topics would be too broad for a research project?
   a. A comparison of two speeches by Voltaire
   b. An analysis of Adam Smith's The Wealth of Nations
   c. An evaluation of all the Enlightenment thinkers and their influence on the modern world

3. You are studying the Enlightenment. Which of the following resources would most likely make inaccurate use of facts and would not be a reliable resource?
   a. An article on the front page of a newspaper
   b. An article in a history journal
   c. An article in an academic journal
   d. An article in the editorial section of a newspaper

4. Which of the following was not one of Locke's natural rights?
   a. Life
   b. Liberty
   c. Property
   d. Pursuit of happiness

5. Voltaire was a French Enlightenment thinker. He stated, “I disapprove of what you say, but I will defend to the death your right to say it.” Voltaire supported freedom of:
   a. Religion
   b. Speech
   c. Assembly
   d. Protest
Enlightenment and Revolution

History, Citizenship Rights and Responsibility, People in Societies

1. The first actual revolutionary application of the ideas of the Enlightenment thinkers was:
   - a. French Revolution
   - b. Russian Revolution
   - c. American Revolution
   - d. Cuban Revolution

2. All of the following were reasons why the British imposed strict laws and rules on the American colonies EXCEPT:
   - a. Britain needed to generate money in order to pay their large war debt
   - b. After decades of neglect, Britain wanted to reestablish control over the American colonies
   - c. The colonies had begun to forget that Britain ruled them
   - d. To avert the expansion of the colonies, Britain needed to curtail the colonies movement westward

3. The main focus of colonial protest toward Britain was due to:
   - a. Taxes
   - b. Restrictions on expansion
   - c. Native American attacks on colonial outposts
   - d. Removal of guns and weapons from the colonists

4. The American colonists wanted the same privileges, status, and rights as the citizens of Britain. This is called:
   - a. Assimilation
   - b. Equality
   - c. Reparations
   - d. Stereotype

5. Patriot leaders such as Samuel Adams and Patrick Henry called for independence from Britain. They based their argument on the idea that if a government broke the social contract between itself and its citizens, the citizens had the right to overthrow the government. This principle of “social contract” is based on the teachings of:
   - a. Voltaire
   - b. John Locke
   - c. Thomas Hobbes
   - d. Baron de Montesquieu
1. The Second Continental Congress appointed Thomas Jefferson to write a Declaration of Independence. Jefferson was well educated and used ideas of the Enlightenment in his writing. Jefferson wrote that all men were born with natural rights: life, liberty, and property. Jefferson borrowed his words from:
   a. Voltaire
   b. Montesquieu
   c. Hobbes
   d. Locke

2. James Madison, the father of the U.S. Constitution, was also influenced by the writings of the Enlightenment thinkers. He applied the concept of the separation of powers and checks and balances to create the U.S. government. This concept is best viewed in:
   a. Three levels of the government: local, state, and federal
   b. Three regions of the U.S.: South, North and Midwest
   c. Three branches of the government: legislative, executive, and judicial
   d. Three class systems: lower, middle, and upper

3. After the American Revolution, the United States created a democracy. In a democracy, the source of authority for the government is the:
   a. Head of state
   b. Legislature
   c. Courts
   d. People

Extended Response — Two points

4. Using the influence of the Enlightenment, explain two reasons why the American colonists, in 1776, felt they had the right to declare independence from Britain.

Standards – Peoples in Societies, Geography

1. Natural law was a fundamental idea of the Enlightenment. Which concept is an application of natural law to the government’s role in the economic lives of its citizens?
   a. Free markets based on supply and demand
   b. Government control to achieve a favorable balance of trade
   c. Agriculture based on tenant farming and serfdom
   d. Lower taxes on the most privileged groups in society

2. The Enlightenment ideas appealed to the French people of the Third Estate. The First and Second Estate had more voting power even though the Third Estate had the largest number of representatives. When Louis XVI called for a meeting of the Estates General, the Third Estate demanded:
   a. A larger room
   b. The imbalance of voting power to be corrected
   c. The power of the Second Estate reduced
   d. Nothing

3. The French Revolution saw a great amount of violence in the streets. This was typified by the storming of the Bastille by a mob of Parisians on July 14, 1789. This prison-fortress was a hated symbol of the Old Regime in France. Which of the following provides the best explanation for these French citizens resorting to violence against their government?
   a. All citizens in France had an equal voice in the French government
   b. The lower classes had no real way to participate in the French government
   c. All classes had equal representation in the French legislative branch
   d. The lower classes supported the aristocracy in the way it governed France

4. In August, the National Assembly issued the Declaration of the Rights of Man and Citizens which demanded freedom of speech, religion, and justice for the people of France. The Declaration of the Rights of Man and Citizens was modeled after:
   a. U.S. Constitution by James Madison
   b. Declaration of Independence by Thomas Jefferson
   c. The Wealth of Nations by Adam Smith
   d. The Spirit of Laws by Baron de Montesquieu

5. In which of the following systems of government would you expect citizens to have the least influence?
   a. Absolute monarchies
   b. Constitutional monarchies
   c. Parliamentary democracies
   d. Presidential democracies
Enlightenment and Revolution

Standards – History, Citizenship Rights and Responsibilities, Geography, Government

1. After Napoleon Bonaparte gained power during the French Revolution, Napoleon waged war with many European nations and extended France’s influence, especially in respect to its Enlightenment ideas. This exchange of ideas is referred to as:
   a. Geographic movement
   b. Imports
   c. Informational society
   d. Culture

2. Enlightenment ideas and news of the successful American and French Revolutions eventually spread to Latin America. The first Latin American nation to gain independence from a European nation was:
   a. Mexico
   b. Cuba
   c. Haiti
   d. Brazil

3. Each of the following forms of government has clearly defined means of transfer of power EXCEPT:
   a. Presidential democracy
   b. Dictatorship

1. The Enlightenment brought about new ideas and concepts in the area of economics. Nations began examining their economic policies and goals. In some places, decisions about employment are rather simple in that the sons usually follow in the footsteps of the father. If the father owned a restaurant, then the son would work in the restaurant and eventually take it over once the father retired. This is an example of what kind of economy?
   a. Market
   b. Mixed
   c. Command
   d. Traditional

2. In a command economy, who makes the decision as to what is produced, how much is produced, and who will produce it?
   a. Consumers
   b. Government
   c. Business owners
   d. Entrepreneurs

3. Laissez-faire economics would be classified as what kind of economy?
   a. Market
   b. Mixed
   c. Command
   d. Traditional

4. Due to the ideas of the Enlightenment, citizens began to demand participation in government. One such method of political action attempts to enact change through:
   a. Dictators
   b. Revolution
   c. Social protest
   d. Ignoring the situation

5. If you planned to write a paper arguing that an important cause of the American Revolution was Britain’s economic policy toward the colonies, what would be a great piece of evidence to include in your paper?
   a. An article in a contemporary newspaper about the celebration of the Fourth of July
   b. U.S. history textbook
   c. Thomas Paine’s pamphlet, Common Sense
   d. PBS television program about the American Revolution

- b. Government
- c. Music
- d. Science
1. What century did the Enlightenment begin?
   a. Sixteenth century
   b. Seventeenth century
   c. Eighteenth century
   d. Nineteenth century

2. In his work, Leviathan, Thomas Hobbes explained reasons and examples of both good and bad governments. Regardless of the rule, Hobbes believed all governments and their citizens had to establish ________ in order to exist.
   a. Freedom of thought
   b. Separation of powers
   c. Social contracts
   d. Freedom of religion

3. Enlightenment thinkers believed there were improvements to be made in the area of government. One concept in government that was challenged during the Enlightenment was the idea of:
   a. Divine right of kings
   b. Only men could efficiently rule a nation
   c. Women could vote in elections
   d. Children had natural rights

4. Enlightenment thinkers were called:
   a. Philosophes
   b. Radicals
   c. Reformers
   d. Socialists

5. Montesquieu believed that to prevent tyranny in government there should be separation of powers. Which of the following best illustrates this idea?
   a. Absolute power in the executive branch
   b. Total power in the legislative branch
   c. Dividing power among three branches of government
   d. Splitting power among three or more countries
Enlightenment and Revolution

Standards – History, Government

1. During the Enlightenment, new ideas of government emerged which challenged existing governments. One form of government challenged was an absolute monarchy. Absolute monarchies still exist today in the countries of Saudi Arabia, Brunei, and Swaziland. The best definition of an absolute monarchy is:
   a. A hereditary ruler which has limits on her/his power
   b. A system of government in which political control is exercised by all the people, either directly or through their elected representatives
   c. A system of government headed by a religious leader
   d. A hereditary ruler controls all of the functions of government

2. Presently, the countries of the United Kingdom, Japan, and Spain have a form of government in which their head of state is a hereditary position and is limited by a set of laws and rules. This type of government is referred to as:
   a. Absolute monarchy
   b. Dictatorship
   c. Constitutional monarchy
   d. Presidential democracy

3. The present countries of Iran, Saudi Arabia, and Vatican City are ruled by a government in which a religion and the government are intertwined. This type of government is called:
   a. Absolute monarchy
   b. Dictatorship
   c. Parliamentary democracy
   d. Theocracy

4. Historically, several countries have been ruled under a dictatorship. This is a government headed by a dictator, or more generally any authoritarian or totalitarian government. Which of the following countries would be an example of a twentieth century dictatorship?
   a. Nazi Germany led by Adolph Hitler
   b. Soviet Union led by Josef Stalin
   c. Cuba led by Fidel Castro
   d. United Kingdom led by Elizabeth II

5. Several countries operate as a presidential democracy. For example the United States, Mexico, and Brazil all are presidential democracies. Under this type of government the main role of the president is both head of state and head of government. The president cannot introduce bills or vote in the:
   a. Legislature
   b. Executive branch
   c. Local elections
   d. State elections

Standards - History, Economics, Citizenship Rights and Responsibilities

1. The large majority of Enlightenment thinkers were from the countries of:
   a. Germany and France
   b. France and Russia
   c. Russia and England
   d. France and England

2. New economic theories were advanced by the Enlightenment period. The physiocrats - economic theorists - applied the idea of natural law to economics. They believed that with less government influence, businesses would thrive and grow.
   This economic policy is called:
   a. Laissez-faire
   b. Socialism
   c. Communism
   d. Traditional market

Short Answer — Two points

3. Read the passage below by the Enlightenment thinker Immanuel Kant and answer the question.

   "Have courage to use your own intelligence? That is the motto of the Enlightenment... All that is required for this Enlightenment is freedom; and particularly the least harmful of all that may be called freedom, namely, the freedom for man to make public use of his reason in all matters. But I hear people clamor on all sides: "Don't argue?" The officer says: Don't argue, drill?" The tax collector: "Don't argue, pay?" The pastor: "Don't argue, believe?"... Here we have restrictions on freedom everywhere. Which restriction is hampering Enlightenment, and which does not, or even promotes it? I answer: The public use of a man's reason must be free at all times, and this alone can bring Enlightenment among men."

   Immanuel Kant, "What is Enlightenment?" 1784

What does Kant believe is necessary in order to spread the ideas of the Enlightenment and why does he believe that people need courage to use their intelligence?

Zero points

He believes that a man's reason can't be restricted to spread Enlightenment. He feels people need to use their courage because if they don't then they'll be restricted.

One point

Kant believed that the public use of a man's reason must be free at all times. He believed that people needed courage to use their intelligence because all that is required for the enlightenment is freedom.

Two points

Kant believes that freedom is necessary in order to spread the ideas. People need courage because they might be afraid to state their beliefs. Government should not restrict a person's belief, though they may try as Kant shows with the preacher and the officer.
1. John Locke believed that the government had an obligation to the people it governed to protect their natural rights. If a government failed to do this, then the people had the right to:
   a. Overthrow the government
   b. Complain privately but not publicly
   c. Nothing
   d. Move to another country

2. Which of the following topics would be too broad for a research project?
   a. A comparison of two speeches by Voltaire
   b. An analysis of Adam Smith's The Wealth of Nations
   c. An evaluation of all the Enlightenment thinkers and their influence on the modern world
   d. A comparison of Hobbes and Locke’s view on the role of government

3. You are studying the Enlightenment. Which of the following resources would most likely make inaccurate use of facts and would not be a reliable resource?
   a. An article on the front page of a newspaper
   b. An article in a history journal
   c. An article in an academic journal
   d. An article in the editorial section of a newspaper

4. Which of the following was not one of Locke’s natural rights?
   a. Life
   b. Liberty
   c. Property
   d. Pursuit of happiness

5. Voltaire was a French Enlightenment thinker. He stated, “I disapprove of what you say, but I will defend to the death your right to say it.” Voltaire supported freedom of:
   a. Religion
   b. Speech
   c. Assembly
   d. Protest
Enlightenment and Revolution

History, Citizenship Rights and Responsibility, People in Societies

1. The first actual revolutionary application of the ideas of the Enlightenment thinkers was:
   a. French Revolution
   b. Russian Revolution
   c. American Revolution
   d. Cuban Revolution

2. All of the following were reasons why the British imposed strict laws and rules on the American colonies EXCEPT:
   a. Britain needed to generate money in order to pay their large war debt
   b. After decades of neglect, Britain wanted to reestablish control over the American colonies
   c. The colonies had begun to forget that Britain ruled them
   d. To avert the expansion of the colonies, Britain needed to curtail the colonies movement westward

3. The main focus of colonial protest toward Britain was due to:
   a. Taxes
   b. Restrictions on expansion
   c. Native American attacks on colonial outposts
   d. Removal of guns and weapons from the colonists

4. The American colonists wanted the same privileges, status, and rights as the citizens of Britain. This is called:
   a. Assimilation
   b. Equality
   c. Reparations
   d. Stereotype

5. Patriot leaders such as Samuel Adams and Patrick Henry called for independence from Britain. They based their argument on the idea that if a government broke the social contract between itself and its citizens, the citizens had the right to overthrow the government. This principle of “social contract” is based on the teachings of:
   a. Voltaire
   b. John Locke
   c. Thomas Hobbes
   d. Baron de Montesquieu
Enlightenment and Revolution

Standards — History, Economics, Social Studies Skills and Methods

1. The Second Continental Congress appointed Thomas Jefferson to write a Declaration of Independence. Jefferson was well educated and used ideas of the Enlightenment in his writing. Jefferson wrote that all men were born with natural rights: life, liberty, and property. Jefferson borrowed his words from:
   a. Voltaire
   b. Montesquieu
   c. Hobbes
   d. Locke

2. James Madison, the father of the U.S. Constitution, was also influenced by the writings of the Enlightenment thinkers. He applied the concept of the separation of powers and checks and balances to create the U.S. government. This concept is best viewed in:
   a. Three levels of the government: local, state, and federal
   b. Three regions of the U.S.: South, North and Midwest
   c. Three branches of the government: legislative, executive, and judicial
   d. Three class systems: lower, middle, and upper

3. After the American Revolution, the United States created a democracy. In a democracy, the source of authority for the government is the:
   a. Head of state
   b. Legislature
   c. Courts
   d. People

Extended Response — Two points

Look for “number” words to help determine how many points to make in your answer — for example the question to the right is asking for you to list two reasons.

4. Using the influence of the Enlightenment, explain two reasons why the American colonists, in 1776, felt they had the right to declare independence from Britain.
   Zero points
   Because they needed the concept of separation of powers and check and balances to create the U.S. government.

   One point
   American colonists wanted independence from Britain because the Enlightenment thinkers believed in free speech, and so did the Americans. The Americans wanted that, as well as checks and balances, another idea from the Enlightenment.

   Two points
   The Enlightenment brought about a school of thought where beliefs about economy and government were questioned. People, including American revolutionaries felt that they no longer needed a king to govern them, and thought that they should also have a say in the process of government, possibly even going so far as to elect their officials. The Enlightenment also brought about the belief that there are “inalienable rights” that all people have, rights the revolutionaries felt they were not receiving.
Answer Key

1. Natural law was a fundamental idea of the Enlightenment. Which concept is an application of natural law to the government's role in the economic lives of its citizens?
   a. Free markets based on supply and demand
   b. Government control to achieve a favorable balance of trade
   c. Agriculture based on tenant farming and serfdom
   d. Lower taxes on the most privileged groups in society

2. The Enlightenment ideas appealed to the French people of the Third Estate. The First and Second Estate had more voting power even though the Third Estate had the largest number of representatives. When Louis XVI called for a meeting of the Estates General, the Third Estate demanded:
   a. A larger room
   b. The imbalance of voting power to be corrected
   c. The power of the Second Estate reduced
   d. Nothing

3. The French Revolution saw a great amount of violence in the streets. This was typified by the storming of the Bastille by a mob of Parisians on July 14, 1789. This prison-fortress was a hated symbol of the Old Regime in France. Which of the following provides the best explanation for these French citizens resorting to violence against their government?
   a. All citizens in France had an equal voice in the French government
   b. The lower classes had no real way to participate in the French government
   c. All classes had equal representation in the French legislative branch
   d. The lower classes supported the aristocracy in the way it governed France

4. In August, the National Assembly issued the Declaration of the Rights of Man and Citizens which demanded freedom of speech, religion, and justice for the people of France. The Declaration of the Rights of Man and Citizens was modeled after:
   a. U.S. Constitution by James Madison
   b. Declaration of Independence by Thomas Jefferson
   c. The Wealth of Nations by Adam Smith
   d. The Spirit of Laws by Baron de Montesquieu

5. In which of the following systems of government would you expect citizens to have the least influence?
   a. Absolute monarchies
   b. Constitutional monarchies
   c. Parliamentary democracies
   d. Presidential democracies
1. After Napoleon Bonaparte gained power during the French Revolution, Napoleon waged war with many European nations and extended France's influence, especially in respect to its Enlightenment ideas. This exchange of ideas is referred to as:
   a. Geographic movement
   b. Imports
   c. Informational society
   d. Culture

2. Enlightenment ideas and news of the successful American and French Revolutions eventually spread to Latin America. The first Latin American nation to gain independence from a European nation was:
   a. Mexico
   b. Cuba
   c. Haiti
   d. Brazil

3. Each of the following forms of government has clearly defined means of transfer of power EXCEPT:
   a. Presidential democracy
   b. Dictatorship
   c. Constitutional monarchy
   d. Parliamentary democracy

4. Describe how citizenship action affected the following events: American Revolution and French Revolution.

   Zero points
   Citizenship impacted the American Revolution and the French Revolution because the people had to stand up for what they believed in, in order to get the things that they wanted.

   One point
   Citizenship gave America freedom. That's why they were able to have the American Revolution. And it was the same for the French Revolution. The French people revolted and protested the king's decision and started the revolution.

   Two points
   Citizenship action impacted the American and French Revolutions because citizens were willing to act on beliefs. They felt their governments weren't what they wanted and acted on that. The citizens used protest and demonstrations to show their disapproval. If these citizens had not stood up for what they believed in, the Enlightenment ideas of life, liberty, and property, there's no telling where America or France would be today.

1. The Enlightenment brought about new ideas and concepts in the area of economics. Nations began examining their economic policies and goals. In some places, decisions about employment are rather simple in that the sons usually follow in the footsteps of the father. If the father owned a restaurant, then the son would work in the restaurant and eventually take it over once the father retired. This is an example of what kind of economy?
   a. Market
   b. Mixed
   c. Command
   d. Traditional

2. In a command economy, who makes the decision as to what is produced, how much is produced, and who will produce it?
   a. Consumers
   b. Government
   c. Business owners
   d. Entrepreneurs

3. Laissez-faire economics would be classified as what kind of economy?
   a. Market
   b. Mixed
   c. Command
   d. Traditional

4. Due to the ideas of the Enlightenment, citizens began to demand participation in government. One such method of political action attempts to enact change through:
   a. Dictators
   b. Revolution
   c. Social protest
   d. Ignoring the situation

5. If you planned to write a paper arguing that an important cause of the American Revolution was Britain’s economic policy toward the colonies, what would be a great piece of evidence to include in your paper?
   a. An article in a contemporary newspaper about the celebration of the Fourth of July
   b. U.S. history textbook
   c. Thomas Paine’s pamphlet, Common Sense
   d. PBS television program about the American Revolution

Industrialization and Imperialism

Miami Valley
Teaching American History
By the late nineteenth century the United States had come out of the Reconstruction era to emerge as an industrial giant in what had been coined the "Gilded Age." America's rise to economic prominence was aided by increased industrialization after the Civil War, leading to a boom in a number of American industries such as mining, mills, and railroads. The agricultural revolution, cheap labor, the rise of big business, and government policy all contributed to the nation's rise to world prominence. Yet all the while, this prosperity was characterized by harsh working conditions for the people of the nation, including women, children, and a rapidly increasing immigrant population. Industrialization also saw an influx of workers from rural America to urban centers, where living conditions were often overcrowded, unsanitary, unsafe, and where tenement living was the norm.

As wealth and industry in America expanded, so too did American interests throughout the world. Frederick Jackson Turner's 1893 thesis suggested that with the closure of the American western frontier, continued expansion was needed to sustain the "American Spirit." Increased naval power, as well as overproduction of consumer products, led to American territorial expansion to acquire both new markets and naval bases abroad. American expansion abroad was often guided and justified by the principles of Manifest Destiny. The resulting American imperialism, especially the U.S. economic dominance in Latin America, ensured by the U.S. victory in the Spanish-American War, helped secure the United States' world power status.

Despite America's new might, conditions at home were underscored by northern migration of African Americans escaping the Jim Crow south, continued racial tensions, citizen demand for labor reform, and a score of movements demanding political and social reform. Progressive reform of the early twentieth century encompassed a host of issues from conservation, urban reform, child labor regulation, women's suffrage, to "trust-busting," and prohibition. It was an era of positive change, yet, simultaneously tinged by continued racism—a tumultuous time that ultimately witnessed the United States' entry into the First World War.

   a. The United States had surpassed Great Britain as controlling the largest share of world production
   b. In 1870, Germany's world production was greater than Belgium's
   c. France's production doubled between 1870 and 1913
   d. Great Britain was the leader in world production in 1940

5. Which statement best describes the overall effect of the Industrial Revolution?
   a. The introduction of machines caused many craftsmen to lose their jobs
   b. Working conditions in the factories were safer than working conditions on the farms
   c. People made more money working in the factories than owning their own business
   d. The Industrial Revolution spread evenly throughout the world
1. During the Industrial Revolution, as the need for factory workers increased, people moved from:
   a. Suburbs to urban areas
   b. Rural regions to the suburbs
   c. Urban areas to the rural areas
   d. Rural regions to the urban regions

2. Why was life in the cities different than life on the farms for women factory workers?
   a. On the farms, women didn't have to work
   b. In the cities, women were paid less, worked longer hours, and had to accept discrimination from superiors
   c. In the cities, childcare was available for the women factory workers
   d. On the farms, women formed unions in order to improve their lives

3. As machinery became more automated, fewer workers were needed. This caused:
   a. Workers to return to their farms
   b. Many people to go to college
   c. Emigration from Europe to the United States

3. Which of the following is a negative result of the Industrial Revolution?
   a. Events from around the world can be reported faster
   b. Wages have increased
   c. People can enjoy foods from all over the world
   d. Environmental disasters and effects are growing

4. Early labor unions were:
   a. Supported by the government
   b. Supported by the factory owners
   c. Formed despite the opposition by the factory owners
   d. Had large memberships

Short Answer — Two points

5. Due to the Industrial Revolution, the world has become a “smaller place.” Explain two changes in communication and/or transportation that have resulted in globalization.

   Zero points
   One change in globalization is the steam engine was invented during that time and another is the telegraph, each invention made communication and transportation easier.

   One point
   The change in communication due to Industrial Revolution is the Internet and cell phones. The Internet is a new way to communicate because you can use e-mail which is a source that helps you receive instant messages faster. The cell phone is good because you can travel and still talk on the phone.

   Two points
   One change in communication that has resulted in globalization is the Internet. Because of the global networking of computers, people can communicate instantly with one another despite the physical miles between them. Another technology that resulted in globalization is the airplane, which suddenly makes it much easier to travel across the ocean. People can go from country to country in a few hours. The world is now much smaller.

According to the quote, one reason to imperialize a country was to:

a. Take raw materials from the country
b. Prevent another country from gaining it
c. To teach and improve the country's citizens
d. To add markets for the mother country

2. Colonies supplied all of the following except:

a. Raw materials
b. New languages
c. Market for goods
d. Cheap labor

3. During the late 19th century, European countries obtained colonies in:

a. Africa, South America, and the Far East
b. Africa, the Middle East, and the Far East
c. Africa, North America, and South America
d. Middle East, North America, and South America

4. Following the Spanish-American War, the United States became an imperialist nation with interests in:

a. Africa, Central America, Far East
b. Far East, Central America, and Europe

4. The Industrial Revolution changed the way people lived. Describe four ways in which people's lives were affected by the Industrial Revolution.

Zero points
People's lives were changed in many ways. One way is prices went up on different items. They were making things that people had no money to buy. Another change was the patriotism meaning that they had flag and red, white and blue everywhere. Not enough jobs were available, and other things were effected too.

One point
The Industrial Revolution changed the way people lived by having people move from the country to the city. Workers were put in factories. Small businesses were forced to push expensive clothing to cheaper prices because the bulk clothing was cheaper to make.

Two points
Four ways the Industrial Revolution changed the way people lived by:
1. Communication
2. Factories
3. Ways of Traveling
4. Inventions

Four points
The Industrial Revolution changed peoples lives in four ways. They were affected through transportation by being able to travel on steam ship and on steam locomotive. The Industrial Revolution also affected them in communication, there was the telegraphy and telephone. People were also affected economically with higher wages at work and lower prices for purchased goods. Finally, the Industrial Revolution made people move, either from the country to the city for factory work or from one country to another in search of better jobs.

4. Following the Spanish-American War, the United States became a world power, obtaining territories around the world. Many citizens from these "obtained" territories resented and resisted the United States control. Explain two such resisting peoples and the result of their uprising.

Zero points
Two resisting people would be France and Russia. They resisted the U.S. uprising because it meant more money and territory for the U.S.

One point
There are many people in territories around the world that resented and resisted U.S. control. One of these territories was Panama. They didn't want the U.S. to control them and in the end we gave them back everything but the canal. There are also many other who resisted U.S. control.

Two points
One territory that resisted the U.S. was Cuba. They had a strong dictatorship. The U.S. wanted them to be a democracy and Cuba disagreed. We almost went to war with Cuba. Another is Puerto Rico. Puerto Rico didn't like the U.S for fighting them and they revolted. The U.S. soon stopped all revolt and got control. Puerto Rico is still kind of controlled by the U.S.

Three points
One resisting people were the Philippines. The U.S. was expected to give the people their freedom after fighting in the Spanish-American War. But, the U.S. didn't give them their freedom. Instead, the U.S. controlled the Philippines until after WWII. The Philippines were constantly rebelling until given their freedom.

Another group of which resented the U.S. control was the people of Hawaii. The U.S. staged a revolt in Hawaii so U.S. businesses could control the sugar industry. Hawaii is now a state in the U.S. but we didn't get it in a nice way.
1914-1933

The Legacy of the Great War
During the early twentieth century, intense competition and rivalry among European powers over trade, increased militarism, and growing nationalism all contributed to growing tensions between the European powers. Competition over territorial expansion, specifically the “Scramble for Africa,” was a particular source of conflict. The balance of power rested on a series of treaty-based European alliances between the Central Powers of Austria-Hungary, Germany and the Ottoman Empire, and the Triple Entente — Great Britain, France and Russia. The assassination of Archduke Ferdinand, heir to the Austro-Hungarian throne on June 28th, 1914, helped spark a world war that in fact had a series of complex causes.

With the outbreak of the Great War in 1914, President Woodrow Wilson and America remained staunchly neutral despite pro-Allied sympathies. American neutrality was difficult for a number of reasons. Trade relations were disrupted disproportionately between the Allied powers and Germany. Germany saw American ties to the Allied economy and arms supply as a sign of American allegiance to the Allied powers. Violation of American maritime neutral trade rights, as well as unrestricted submarine warfare, had a huge impact on pulling the U.S. into war. What would ultimately draw the U.S. into the war was the intercepted “Zimmerman Telegram,” a secret correspondence by the German ambassador to Mexico asking that the country join in a military alliance against the Americans in return for Mexican territories lost to them in 1848. Amid public outcry on the publication of the Zimmerman Telegram, Wilson addressed Congress in 1917, offering a list of grievances toward Germany and asking for a declaration of war.

By the time the U.S. entered the conflict, the Great War had been raging for three years. A new “industrialized” style of military conflict emerged during WWI, which was characterized by trench and chemical warfare, constant stalemate, and catastrophic casualties on both sides of the fighting. The war ended roughly a year after Americans entered the arena, with the November 1918 armistice. As the head of the American delegation to the Paris Peace Conference, Wilson began a concerted effort to keep the world free from future war and safe for democracy. On January 18th, 1918, Wilson announced his Fourteen Points — a number of provisions to help bring about his vision. Among the points were self-determination for all people, de-colonization, freedom of the seas, and perhaps most importantly, the creation of a “League of Nations” which was designated to help ensure world peace and harmony.

Wilson's Fourteen Points faced a number of challenges both at home and at the Peace Conference. Not all of Wilson's points were accepted at the Conference by the Europeans, and at home the U.S. Senate ultimately blocked American entry into the League of Nations.

It took months of negotiation during the Paris Peace Conference for an agreement to be reached. Of the five treaties signed at the conference, it is the Treaty of Versailles signed by Germany that is often cited by historians as one of the main causes of WWII. Through the Treaty of Versailles, the European victors were determined to punish Germany, who they held responsible for the war, by imposing harsh terms and reparations. In addition, the Europeans were looking to further expand their empires. Germany lost a majority of its natural resource-rich territory. Colonial territory held by the Central Powers in Africa, the Middle East, and the Pacific was turned over to the French and British, while Japan received China's Shantung province. These harsh provisions, coupled with worldwide economic depression after 1929, would soon contribute to the rise of nationalism and militarism in Europe, and more specifically the rise of Hitler and other totalitarian regimes.

The Legacy of the Great War
Standards - History, Economics

1. The Great War began in 1914 when a "spark" set off a series of events. Several factors or tensions had accumulated which created a climate for war. One such factor was nationalism. The best definition of nationalism is:
   a. Extreme loyalty for one's country, often with emphasis on national self interest and promotion of one's culture over others
   b. All people of one nation working together
   c. A stronger nation controls a weaker nation
   d. A build up of a nation's weapons

2. The issue of self-government was one factor that led to the outbreak of WWI. Many nations' citizens belonged to their own ethnic groups and some of these multinational groups of people wanted to be able to control the destiny of their lives and create their own country. Which of the following nations did not have to deal with this problem?
   a. Russia
   b. France
   c. Austria-Hungary
   d. Ottoman Empire

3. Competition between the nations of Europe was another factor leading to war. Countries needed raw materials to make manufactured goods along with fuel to power their factories. They also needed places to sell their goods. These industrialized nations looked for ways to take control of weaker, less industrialized countries. This is called:
   a. Nationalism
   b. Alliances
   c. Imperialism
   d. Militarism

4. Prior to the start of the Great War, Europe had approximately one hundred years of peace with only minor conflicts. During that period of time, many changes occurred especially in the area of economics. The largest influence on economics was:
   a. Industrial Revolution
   b. Nationalism
   c. Boxer Rebellion
   d. Rivalry among the nations

5. Changes in technology led to new weapons of war which nations stockpiled to increase the size of their armies and navies. This is called:
   a. Imperialism
   b. Alliances
   c. Militarism
   d. Industrial Revolution
1. The assassination of Archduke Ferdinand, heir to the Austrian-Hungarian empire, on June 28th, 1914, led to the start of:
   a. A boycott against the nation of Serbia
   b. Competition for a new leader of Austria-Hungary
   c. The collapse of Austria-Hungary
   d. The Great War (WWI)

2. At the beginning of the war, many countries chose sides to support. This formal agreement among nations to cooperate and provide for their mutual defense is called:
   a. Common good
   b. Alliances
   c. Interdependence
   d. Globalization

3. Which country was not a member of the Central Powers?
   a. Germany
   b. Italy
   c. Ottoman Empire
   d. Austria-Hungary

4. Which of the following countries formed the Triple Entente?
   a. United Kingdom, France, Russia
   b. United Kingdom, United States, France
   c. United States, France, Russia
   d. United Kingdom, France, Ottoman Empire

5. Which of the following countries joined the Triple Entente in 1915?
   a. Japan
   b. Italy
   c. Germany
   d. Ireland
1. At the outbreak of war, President Wilson declared the United States, “neutral in fact as well as in name... impartial in thought as well as in action.” This proved to be difficult to maintain because:
   a. American ships were attacked by German submarines
   b. American citizens were killed while traveling overseas on ships such as the Sussex and Lusitania
   c. American ships were searched by British and French warships
   d. All of the above

2. Read the following passage and answer the question.
   “I didn't raise my boy to be a soldier,
   I brought him up to be my pride and joy,
   Who dares to put a musket on his shoulder,
   To shoot some other mother’s darling boy?”

   I Didn't Raise my Boy to be a Soldier
   By Alfred Bryan and Al Piantadosi

   In respect to the war in Europe, the above song would have most likely supported a policy of:
   a. Aggression
   b. Neutrality
   c. Common good
   d. Globalization

3. In 1916, President Wilson ran for re-election under the slogan “He kept us out of war.” He attempted to bring the warring sides together and sent aides to Europe to try to find a compromise. Unfortunately, it didn’t work. The United States was finally pulled into the war due to:
   a. Continued attacks on American ships
   b. An attack on New York City by German submarines
   c. An assassination attempt on President Wilson
   d. The Zimmerman telegram to Mexico offering U.S. territory if they joined Germany in the war.

4. Identify two long-term causes of the Great War.
   Zero points
   There are two long term causes of the Great War. One cause being the advancement of Germany, and its troops into other countries including neutrals. The second cause being that the holocaust came into effect, causing horror worldwide and the mass killings of many peoples.

   One point
   Long term causes of the Great War: distrust in alliances and countries trying to expand and run into each other.

   Two points
   Two causes of the Great War were imperialism and arms race. First countries were competing with each other for colonies in African and Asia. This competition led to tension between the countries. Secondly, countries had built up their weapons and military partly due to the Industrial Revolution. The countries were ready to go to war when the Archduke was killed.

4. Identify four ways in which World War I was different from previous wars.
   Zero points
   World War one was different from other wars because would war one had less causalities and ended with a treaty.

One point
   In WWI it was different from the previous wars because we fought other countries around the world. It was a World war.

Two points
   1) They had new types of weapons like subs
   2) There was more deaths than other wars
   3) The war lasted a long time

Three points
   In WWI, there were new weapons, like submarines. Also, trench warfare began. It involved both sides digging large ditches or trenches and that's where the soldier fought. New equipment, like gas masks, were used to protect soldiers for the new weapons.

Four points
   World War I was different from previous wars because
   • New weapons – machine guns and tanks
   • Trench warfare – this made battles bloody and led to stalemates
   • The number of countries involved was larger than other wars
   • The number of deaths, both civilians and soldiers was high

3. After the Great War, the United States experienced a period of economic boom resulting in an increase in prosperity for some Americans. Unfortunately, the economy had some underlying problems and resulted in:
   a. High unemployment
   b. Unequal distribution of wealth
   c. Overproduction
   d. All of the above

   Short Answer — Two points

4. Describe two causes of the Russian Revolution.
   Zero points
   One cause was the Kellogg Briand pact. Another cause was overproduction and low unemployment.

   One point
   A cause of the Russian Revolution was the collapse of their government. Another cause was their large debt from the war.

   Two points
   Many Russians were dying in a war that they thought didn't directly affect them. The war cost a lot of money and the people of Russia were starving. They wanted to pull out of the war and they wanted food.

4. Historians often cite the harshness of the Treaty of Versailles on Germany as a primary cause of the eventual outbreak of World War II. Summarize two provisions of the Versailles Treaty relating to Germany and discuss how each helped lead to World War II.

One point

The Treaty of Versailles ended WWI with Germany agreeing to give back a fair amount of land they had taken from the surrounding countries. Instead they began to grow in power which eventually led to Hitler's Nazi party.

Two points

Two provisions of the Treaty of Versailles were one that Germany would have to stop building their arms and two, that they would not cause conflict in any way towards the U.S. They both helped lead to WWII because Germany didn't follow with the treaty of Versailles and with building arms led to the outbreak of war.

Four points

Two things that the Treaty of Versailles did was one – charge Germany for all the destruction that the war created, Germany then slipped into poverty allowing Hitler to take power by saying he could end Germany's depression. Another thing the treaty did was greatly reducing Germany's military, which hurt German moral by making them think they were weak and vulnerable, which made Hitler looked all the better when he re-made the German military.
The Roaring Twenties and Great Depression
Following a brief post WWI economic decline, the 1920s brought a period of prosperity for Americans and a general increase in the standard of living for a number of citizens. A time of technological innovation and new consumer products, the 1920s saw two-thirds of American homes powered by electricity, and automobiles widely affordable for the middle class. The previous era of Progressive reform was replaced by a consumerism boom, when Americans, fueled by installment buying options, eagerly purchased automobiles, radios, new homes, and stocks. Both the middle class and leisure time grew, and along with this, American value systems changed. Materialism and pleasure seeking began to replace the traditional values of faith, home, and thrift. Women, who were finally granted the right to vote nationally in 1920, experienced newfound independence and expressed themselves with new modes of dress, including short hair and shorter skirts that went along with the new "flapper" lifestyle.

Despite the general prosperity of the 1920s, racial, ethnic, and religious prejudice increased along with distrust for immigrants in a wave of post war isolationism. The Bolshevik Revolution in 1917 had led to a widespread fear of the radical left in America. This national paranoia, referred to as the "Red Scare," culminated in the conviction and execution of two Italian anarchists — Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti. The Immigration Quota Act of 1921 in effect served to limit the two Italian anarchists - Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti.

The Roaring Twenties

The stock market crash had catastrophic effects and sent America spiraling into an economic depression that would last until 1941.

The Great Depression worsened after 1932, and was made worse by a devastating drought in the southern plains states, including Kansas, Oklahoma, and portions of Texas, Colorado, and New Mexico. Over-farming coupled with over a decade of drought had reduced farms to dusty wasteland in what became known as the Dust Bowl. The rest of the industrialized world had fallen into economic depression as well. Despite the global nature of the depression, Americans tended to blame their president for their troubles—shanty homes that were popping up near large urban centers were being called "Hoovervilles." Not surprisingly, Franklin Delano Roosevelt won an overwhelming victory in the 1932 election, offering Americans a "New Deal." Despite FDR's efforts, New Deal programs were not enough to pull the United States out of its economic disaster. Though social programs like the Works Progress Administration (WPA) and legislation like the Social Security Act could not rescue the country's economy, the FDR administration forever transformed the nation through the introduction of the concept of the welfare state and federal responsibility for the stability of the nation's economy.

The Great Depression and its devastating world wide impact would soon become one of the causes of WWII. Ironically, it took the Second World War and the subsequent economic stimulation from war production and industry to bring an end to the Great Depression in America.

5. Describe two ways in which the New Deal expanded the role of the government.

Zero points
   The New Deal expanded the role of the government by having them put more effort into business and cities.

One point
   The New Deal expanded the role of government by:
   1) creating government checks on the economy so the depression couldn't happen again but giving the government power to change things if they thought it was needed.
   2) creating welfare policies

Two points
   The New Deal gave the government the role of contractor, giving and creating thousands of jobs. Also, the government became very important in the handling of business affairs. The government was much more active in business than before. Regulations of the stock market such as keeping people from buying on the margin were one New Deal program.

WWII and the Rise of the Cold War
1939-1953

WWII and the Rise of the Cold War

The Great Depression in the U.S. had worldwide economic impact. Europe, which was struggling to recover from the ravages of the Great War, entered a global economic depression. To help the situation at home, the U.S. recalled its foreign loans. Many European nations, who were also suffering from the effects of the Great Depression, defaulted on the repayment of their loans, causing international relations to suffer. Germany, especially, felt the economic effects, which were intensified by the provisions laid out in the Treaty of Versailles following WWI. Authoritarian style government saw a revival after WWI, and countries became increasingly nationalistic. Fascist rulers such as Mussolini in Italy, and later, Francisco Franco in Spain, came to power. Among the emerging dictators was Adolph Hitler, who promised "work and bread" with his Nazi party in Germany. Nazism, which was founded on principles of extreme nationalism and racism, began a "purification" program that ultimately led to the Holocaust—the mass, systematic murder of millions of European Jews.

Despite provisions in the Treaty of Versailles, Hitler secretly began to rearm Germany and aimed to take back territory he thought unfairly taken away at Versailles. By 1935 the Germans began openly rearming in the wave of British and French appeasement policies. Wanting to avoid another war, the British and French let Germany get away with violating the Treaty of Versailles. In 1936, Germany and Italy formed an alliance, and shortly after, Japan joined allegiance with Germany against the communist Soviet Union. Germany began reclaiming territory through military force, eventually going so far as to annex Austria. Hitler soon set his sights on Poland, and following his blitzkrieg invasion of an allied country, Britain and France responded by declaring war on Germany. Thus began World War II.

In the United States, President Roosevelt supported isolationism and a "go it alone" policy during the nation's economic troubles. In keeping with his isolationist policy, Roosevelt passed a series of neutrality acts in order to keep America out of the war. However, with the increasing aggression of the Axis powers, American involvement in terms of aid to the allies was inevitable. FDR offered aid to the allies through measures such as the Lend-Lease program, which allowed aid to Great Britain without overt involvement in the war. However, following the bombing of Pearl Harbor by the Japanese, Americans entered the war in 1941.

On the home front, the war years offered economic opportunities for women and minorities, though they were expected to surrender their jobs once the soldiers returned from war. Additionally, a misguided effort to provide domestic security led to the mass incarceration of Japanese Americans in internment camps. Though millions of lives were lost on all sides, it was the war, and the subsequent boom in industry, that restored prosperity to a nation that had languished for over a decade in severe economic depression.

Just before the war's end, the political implications of the struggle had come to outweigh the military aspects. Tensions started building between the Soviet Union and the other western democracies. At the Yalta Conference, months after the end of the European war on May 8th, 1945, Roosevelt, Stalin, and Churchill agreed to divide Berlin, as well as granting eastern Poland to the Soviet Union, in exchange for Soviet help in ending the war with the Japanese. Despite the Soviet commitment to help with the effort in the Pacific, the United States made the controversial decision to use the atomic bomb on two Japanese cities to avoid a land invasion and further loss of American life. Many historians argue that the decision to use atomic weapons was in part a display of force designed specifically to intimidate the Soviets. Despite the tensions that were shaping postwar politics, the three agreed to draft a United Nations charter—-founded to replace the League of Nations in hopes of preventing future conflicts.

Though the Allies emerged victorious from the war, Europe was utterly ravaged by the fighting. An American program of economic aid, the Marshall Plan, offered economic aid to Western Europe for recovery. Though many nations were weakened by the war, the United States and the Soviet Union emerged as world powers, and were soon at odds. Harry S. Truman, who became president after the death of Roosevelt, crafted the Truman Doctrine in 1947, which provided for military and economic aid to countries vulnerable to falling to communism, in an effort at communist containment. The buildup of tensions between the western democratic allies and the communist Soviet Union would result in a new crisis—the Cold War.

In response to the Cold War climate, the North Atlantic Treaty was signed by western democratic nations in an alliance to ensure security of all member nations in the event of communist aggression. To counter NATO, the Soviet Union and its allies formed the Warsaw Pact. U.S. commitment to communist containment would eventually draw it into the Korean conflict. Soviet-controlled North Korea invaded the American-controlled south in attempts to reunite the country. The U.S., along with other allies, entered into the conflict via the United Nations in 1950. Korea would be first in a series of cold war conflicts gone hot that the United States would be drawn into.

5. How did the Cold War affect the United States on an economic level, such as trade?
   Zero points
   The Cold War affected the U.S. on economic level with trade because many of the overseas countries we traded with were in the path of Russian routes.

   One point
   It stopped trade between the U.S. and S.U. completely. It caused the U.S. to shorten exports which reduced profits from that area.

   Two points
   During the Cold War the United States did not trade with other communist nations, such as China and Cuba. In addition, the United States used trade to "convince" nations to stay on the U.S. side. If countries sided with the Soviet Union, they could lose imports and exports from the United States. Secondly, the Cold War cost the U.S. a lot of money. The U.S. was always trying to improve their military and add more weapons for their security.

Zero points
They need more stuff.

One point
Four changes that helped establish American way of life were more jobs were available in the 1950s. Unemployment was very low.

Two points
Many changes occurred during the 1950s that helped establish the American way of life. One of these changes was more immigrants. Our technology when it came to transportation improves. Everyone wanted a car.

Three points
Many changes were the car as the main transportation. The car allowed people to move away from the cities. The car also created the highway system which again allowed people to travel on vacations.

Four points
The changes are: 1) the baby boom – the soldiers came home and everyone got married and had lots of babies 2) the car – the car let people move to the suburbs 3) the GI bill – this was money given to veterans so they could go to school like college and also it helped them buy stuff like houses. 4) Highway system – Eisenhower created the highway system to link the cities together.
1953 to Today
Post WWII to the Modern Era

Miami Valley Teaching American History
The Cold War defined world politics after WWII. The post-WWII world saw anti-colonial independence movements form in emerging countries around the world. Fearing that the vulnerable, newly independent countries emerging in Latin America, the Middle East, Sub-Saharan Africa, and Asia would fall to communism, the United States increased its aggressive containment policies, increasing tensions between the United States and Soviet Union. The Cold War also affected the American psyche, where a growing culture of fear contributed to the rise of McCarthyism. A sense of paranoia that communism was invading the U.S. reigned. Adding to the tensions were the nuclear capabilities of both of the superpowers. Americans were naively advised to “duck and cover” in the event of a nuclear attack. Though Cold War tensions impacted the lives of Americans, post war America saw a “baby boom,” an expanding economy, and growth of the middle class. With the advent of the interstate highway system, more Americans were able to commute to work, and middle class families headed to fast-growing suburbs to raise their children away from the hustle and bustle of the city.

Under the over arching umbrella of the Cold War, another ongoing struggle was unfolding. The Civil Rights Movement came to the forefront in the 1950s and 1960s. Several strides toward gaining equal rights for African Americans were made during the 1940s when the NAACP set out to overturn segregation laws in various arenas of public life. The NAACP won an inspiring victory with the monumental 1954 court case, Brown vs. the Board of Education, where the policy of “separate but equal” was overthrown and desegregation of schools began. Many anti-civil rights whites, especially in the South, bitterly and often violently opposed the gains of the civil rights movement. Despite this, civil rights advocacy continued with sit-ins, bus boycotts, and other acts of civil disobedience. Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., a Baptist minister from Atlanta, emerged as an inspiring national leader for the movement. However, just as substantial gains for civil rights were being made in the United States, other countries in the world, such as South Africa, were moving in the opposite direction. Starting in 1948, the South African government instituted apartheid—a government policy of racial segregation that did not end until 1993.

The 1960s were a turbulent time that witnessed the assassination of President Kennedy and Martin Luther King, among other political leaders and activists. In addition, the communist revolution in Cuba, led by Fidel Castro in 1959, succeeded in installing a communist government dangerously close to the United States, creating tension and even crisis between the two countries. In its commitment to communist containment, the U.S. became bogged down in the Vietnam War. Though no official declaration of war was ever made, U.S. involvement in the fighting would ultimately lead to the deaths of thousands of American soldiers. Domestic sentiment against the war became increasingly vocal, especially among American youth. A counter culture movement began, where young men and women protested through rallies, demonstrations, and a new anti-establishment youth sub-culture that rejected the ideas of their parents. The activism of the 1960s led to many gains for minorities, including women, with the passage of the Civil Rights Act of 1964.

During the 1970s, the American people were experiencing a loss of confidence in their leadership as well as the economy in the wake of the Watergate scandal, “stagflation,” decline in American industry, the energy crisis, the defeat of South Vietnam, and the Iranian hostage crisis. The presidencies of Ford and Carter attempted to renew citizen’s faith in America, and alleviate the economic woes of the nation, albeit with little success. It was in this context that Ronald Reagan won a landslide victory in the 1980 election, promising to restore economic growth and expand the military.

During the Reagan years, tensions between the Soviet Union and the United States intensified. Reagan dubbed the Soviet Union the “Evil Empire” and began a massive military increase in hopes of toppling the Soviet Union economically by accelerating the arms race. The new Soviet leader, Mikhail Gorbachev, aware that the Soviet economy would not hold up, realized that arms negotiations with the United States were necessary. These negotiations led to reform of the Soviet system, with policies of liberal reform and democratization of Eastern bloc states, which ultimately contributed to the dissolution of the Soviet Union and signaled the end of the Cold War.

With the fall of the Soviet Union, the United States emerged as the world’s unilateral superpower, and a new world order emerged. In the new age of globalization, the United States sphere of influence widened culturally, politically, and economically. The U.S. had also become the leader of the new information age, and with the advent of the World Wide Web in the 1990s, U.S. culture and values quickly spread around the globe. This caused a measurable amount of concern for some who feared a homogenous American world culture at the expense of other nations’ customs and traditions. Some were also growing uncomfortable with America’s increasing role as a global police force, often intervening in the affairs of other countries for what some saw as self serving interests. The United States had far reaching economic influence as well, often pressuring other nations to open their markets to American goods and pushing through controversial trade treaties such as NAFTA. Yet, at the dawn of the twenty-first century, the United States seemed securely placed at the head of world power. However, the United States, and everything it stands for, would be viciously challenged by violent terrorist attacks committed by Islamic extremists on September 11, 2001. The history of the post 9/11 world is still being written.

5. Explain two ways in which Jim Crow laws affected racial equality in the United States as late as the 1960s.

Zero points
Two ways Jim Crow laws affected racial equality was that: The African Americans were treated differently.

One point
Jim Crow laws affected racial equality by separating people because of their race. It leads to tension among the people. Another way Jim Crow affected racial equality was by preventing blacks from living equal to white.

Two points
The laws kept African Americans out of "white" schools. They also separated people from drinking out of the same fountain using the same bathrooms, living in the same neighborhoods and other common things. The laws made a division between the races which in itself added to the tension and the inequality. One side naturally felt superior to the other.

In the past fifty years, countries have become more interdependent for important goods and services. Analyze two ways this globalization has improved a nation's standard of living and two ways in which interdependence has hindered the growth of a nation. Be specific.

Zero points
   Globalization has made the world more global. People know where other countries are and how they live.

One point
   This globalization has improved a nation's standard of living by making us more aware of happening around the world. Countries share ideas and make connections with one another.

Two points
   Globalization of trade has improved a nation of standard by being able to experience another nation's culture. It also helps with money, other countries pays tariffs and more money comes into the country. But this globalization has also hindered our nation because the nation also loses money and it takes our culture.

Three points
   This globalization has improved a nations' standard of living because its all worked out the certain countries trade with each other and everybody get what they need for stuff. Some countries have too much of something and too little of something else. Globalization helps equal it out and it improves everyone's life. The negative thing is that some countries get into arguments and get the whole chain thrown off.

Four points
   Two ways how this globalization has improved a nation's standard of living is by exchanging goods that a country needs. For example, the US gives food to Saudi Arabia in exchange for oil. Each country gets their needs met. It also brings money into the country through tariffs and exports/imports. Unfortunately, globalization can hinder the growth of a nation by making it dependent on a country for a product. For instance, the U.S. relies on oil so we don't look for ways of trying to come up with a different type of fuel. It also leads to conflicts within groups of nations that have a resource other countries want. Like the war in Iraq is over oil.

4. The 26th Amendment to the Constitution allowed which group to vote?

5. The United States and Japan both have strong automobile industries. What effect does this have on each country’s trade?
   Zero points
   This allows items to be sent from one place to another. This also let other countries trade with Japan after World War II.

   One point
   The United States and Japan both have a strong automobile industry which makes it hard for the countries to trade with each other because neither country needs the other’s cars.

   Two points
   Neither country will be able to trade with each other because they have the same product. This also means that the U.S. and Japan will be in competition with each other when trading with other countries. They will need the same resources and that could lead to problems too.

4. Choose one minority group that has achieved more rights in the past century. Explain two rights achieved and describe two methods that were used by citizens to get more rights.
   Zero points
   African Americans are treated more equal than whites.

   One point
   African Americans have achieved more rights in the past century. They have earned the right to vote.

   Two points
   African Americans are a huge minority in today’s society. Lots of discrimination was everywhere. African Americans stood up and they protested their rights so there was no more segregation. They also fought for their rights, using violence.

   Three points
   In the last 100 years, African Americans have fought and protested for their rights. They achieved an end to segregation with the overturn of the Brown v. Board of Education. They achieved this by fighting the government in a legal way, through petitions and the courts. They had people file court hearings and review the earlier decisions.

   Four points
   Women have achieved many rights in the past century. They got the right to vote with the passage of the 19th Amendment. They got this by protesting and marching in Washington, getting people to notice their desires. Secondly, women have been fighting to get equal pay for equal work. They started bringing attention to their cause after WWII when they didn’t want to give up their jobs. They wrote books and articles about their desires and wants. They made Congress look into equal pay laws. Finally, they were able to get abortion legal which gave them the right to control their own bodies.

VOCABULARY BUILDING

A GLOSSARY FOR SOCIAL STUDIES FOR THE OHIO GRADUATION TEST
1. ACCOUNT:
a story, narrative, or record of what happened over a period of time as in,
This chapter is an account of the "roaring twenties" in the U.S.

2. AFFECT:
to produce a result or effect; for example, The bitter cold weather affected the fighting ability of George Washington's army camping at Valley Forge, Pennsylvania, in the winter of 1777.

3. ANALYZE:
to identify the basic guiding principles or most important parts of something and then explain how they relate to each other or work together to produce a conclusion or result, as in analyze absolutism or analyze imperialism.

4. ASSESS:
to determine and state the value or importance of something, as in,
Assess the importance of the Civil War battle of Gettysburg.

5. AUTOBIOGRAPHY:
an account of a person's life written by that person.

6. BIBLIOGRAPHY:
a list of information sources used in research that support (document) findings and conclusions.

7. BIOGRAPHY:
an account of a person's life written by someone other than the subject of the biography.

8. CAUSE AND EFFECT RELATIONSHIP:
the principle that for every event there is an identifiable, prior action or situation that helps explain why the event (or events) occurred; the idea that events do not occur randomly or accidentally without reason; for example, The American Revolution (the event) may be explained as the effect of earlier actions (like the Stamp Act) taken by the English government; essay test questions often ask for explanation of important events or social changes that cite specific causal forces or actions that produced the event or situation under consideration.

9. CHALLENGE:
something that threatens, obstructs or makes a goal more difficult to achieve, or, that makes it difficult to accept or continue to believe what was once believed to be true.

10. CONTRIBUTE:
help reach a goal, add to what others do or give to reach a goal.
11. DEFINE:
state the meaning of a word, describe main characteristics of something as in, define the economics term, depression, or define the word battlefield.

12. DESCRIBE:
to say, write or communicate with reasonable detail what happened, how somebody or something looks, how something works; to describe means simply to state factually “what is,” not to assert its “goodness or badness.”

13. Determine:
to decide what to do after considering many possibilities.

14. EFFECT:
noun or verb: noun: result, outcome, what happened after something happened or somebody did something as in, one effect of the Civil War was the end of slavery; verb: cause an outcome, make something happen; as in, The way George Washington conducted himself as the first president effected major change in how the American people thought about the new, stronger executive branch created by the Constitution.

15. EXPLAIN:
give reasons for something, state a cause or causes of something that happened, or may happen, or about how something works.

16. IDENTIFY:
give a brief description of who a person is, what she/he did or is known for, or a statement including the main things to know about something.

17. INFLUENCE:
ability to cause people to act or think in ways they would not otherwise have done; influence comes from prestige, respect, trust, skills of persuasion.

18. INTENDED TO:
expected or designed to achieve a certain effect or result.

19. LIST:
a series of words or short phrases with a common purpose like the names of all U.S. presidents, the main characteristics of an event, action or situation as in, List the major causes of the Protestant Reformation (no explanation or description of each one necessary).

20. POWER:
power is similar to influence in that both imply the ability to get people to act or think in ways they would not otherwise have done; power differs in that it more often rests on the actual use of or threat of force or coercion in some form as, When a law is disobeyed, the government has the legitimate (rightful) power or authority to take a person’s life, freedom or property as punishment, or, when an employer uses her power over an employee’s job and salary to enforce compliance with employment requirements.
21. RESOLVE:
   to solve a problem, to reach agreement in a dispute or conflict, to clarify a confusing situation.

22. RESULTED:
   the direct effects or consequences of actions, events, conditions.

23. SUMMARIZE:
   to present only the most important ideas or points explained in greater detail in the original body of writing, or, to state in brief form the major reasons for something as in, Summarize the Magna Carta, or, Summarize why the U.S. entered World War I.

24. SUPPORT:
   noun or verb: noun; a form of help received or given; verb: giving, helping.
1. ANALYSIS:
   the separating or breaking up into parts of any whole — a situation, an event, a condition, an argument as in, Analyze the Declaration of Independence — what are its key ideas, objectives and arguments supporting American independence.

2. ARTIFACT:
   something produced by human work; for example, in the study of ancient civilizations, primitive art or tools found by archaeologists digging under and around crumbling structures, or, in more recent times, pieces of pottery, old coins and tableware found at the west Dayton site of the Wright brothers' original home also are artifacts.

3. ASSURE:
   to state positively, to end doubt, to create a sense of confidence that nothing bad will happen.

4. ATTEMPTED:
   to have made an effort, tried, sought to have achieved something.

5. BIAS:
   a tendency toward unfair judgment, an attitude that keeps people from being objective; a mental block or attitude obstructing truth or reality; for example, racial bias against African-Americans among white Americans made it difficult for them to recognize the unjust treatment black Americans suffered because of racial segregation laws and other forms of racial discrimination.

6. COMPARE AND CONTRAST:
   to explain how two or more things of the same type or in the same general category are similar and, at the same time different and, in some ways, completely opposite from each other; as in, Compare and contrast the effects of the Civil War on the North and the South or compare and contrast German Nazism with Soviet Russian Communism.
   (You cannot compare and contrast pizza and cars but you can compare and contrast different brands of pizza.)

7. CONCEPT:
   a general idea, connection of similar ideas intended to give a "mental picture" that increases understanding.

8. CONVICTION:
   a strong, fixed belief; an important principle or standard of judgment.

9. CREDIBLE:
   believable, persuasive, convincing, easy to accept as true; capable of being believed or accepted as true, creating the strong impression of truth and validity as in, He gave a credible explanation of what happened.
10. CRITICAL:
a turning point in time or a situation leading toward possibly good or bad results; something very important to the way the future turns out.

11. CRITIQUE:
an objective, balanced analysis of the good and bad points in a piece of writing, an oral presentation, or in a set of ideas.

12. DISTRIBUTION:
to divide up and allocate or give out shares of something among many recipients.

13. ESSENTIAL:
something that must be included in an explanation or description of an event, condition or situation, or that is the key, the first step toward understanding a more complex event, condition or situation as, In order to understand why the Civil War was inevitable it is essential to know how intense was the conflict over slavery.

14. IMPLEMENTATION:
carrying out a plan or intention, working to achieve a goal, putting ideas into action.

15. IMPLY:
to indicate or to hint at without actually saying openly as in, King George the Third's refusal even to listen to complaints of American colonial leaders implied that he did not believe the colonies would ever rebel against his authority.

16. INFER:
to conclude or to assume that something is true after a period of observation, reading, listening as in, I infer after reading Uncle Tom's Cabin that Harriet Beecher Stowe thought slavery to be morally wrong, or, I infer from the look on your face that you do not like the picture.

17. INNOVATION:
something new, completely different and important.

18. OBJECTIVE:
based on facts and clear evidence, unbiased.

19. PERCEIVE:
to have a strong mental impression (perception) of reality or truth based on a mix of fact and non-fact; perceptions are often strengthened by a strong wish that something be true.

20. PRIMARY SOURCE:
an original source of information; for example an autobiography (someone writing the story of his/her own life) is a primary source of information about the person whereas a textbook chapter, written by someone else, including information about the same person is not a primary source.
21. REFLECTED:
an event, condition or action that clearly revealed its cause.

22. RELIABILITY:
dependability, conscientiousness, faithfulness.

23. SECONDARY SOURCE:
a source of information created by someone not directly involved in or a personal witness to what is being written about, for example, a social studies textbook contains mostly secondary information; an example of an exception would be a textbook that includes an original source, as for example, the full, actual text of President Lincoln's speech at the Gettysburg battleground.

24. SIGNIFICANT:
important, meaningful; has or will have a major effect.

25. THESIS:
a statement (written or spoken) of belief that intends to offer a basic explanation of something as in, The cause of the American Revolution was the English government's violation of the natural rights of people living in colonial America; a thesis must be supported by facts and logical reasoning; when a thesis is not supported either because of untrue facts or when true facts are not presented in an understandable, logical way, then the thesis may be refuted or disproved by pointing out the factual and/or logical weaknesses.

26. VIOLATED:
the fact of a rule or law being broken, feeling of having been unjustly treated or harmed.

27. VIOLATING:
breaking or disregarding the law or the rules, disturbing, doing harm.
1. 14 POINTS:
a set of 14 ideas proposed by U.S. President Woodrow Wilson in 1919 for ending World War I and establishing a just and lasting world peace.

2. 1st AMENDMENT FREEDOMS:
a set of restraints on American national and state governments preventing them from restricting citizens' natural rights of free speech, religion, assembly (to meet and organize for political purposes) and petition, (to ask for government to act or not to act in certain ways and to seek to influence what government does); these rights are included in the 1st Amendment to the U.S. Constitution, part of the Bill of Rights; the U.S. Supreme Court has declared them so important to democracy that they deserve special protection and may be restricted only under the most unusual circumstances, for example, when there is a "clear and present danger" to national security.

3. 19th AMENDMENT:
the amendment to the U.S. Constitution in 1920 that established the right of American women to vote in federal and state elections by invalidating all state laws limiting voting to men.

4. 26th AMENDMENT:
the amendment to the U.S. Constitution in 1971 that established the right of U.S. citizens 18 years of age to vote in all state and federal elections by invalidating all state laws limiting the right to vote to citizens 21 and over.

5. ABOLITION:
in American history the term usually refers to the goal of ending slavery; "abolitionists" were people who advocated and worked to end slavery before the Civil War.

6. ABSOLUTE ADVANTAGE:
a producer of a good or service has an absolute advantage if he/she can make more of it than another producer when each has the same amount of resources — money, skill, time, etc.

7. ABSOLUTE MONARCHY:
a political system in which a monarch (king, queen, emperor or prince) who gained power by birth into a legally, often religiously recognized royal family exercises total, unopposed and legally unchallengeable authority over a nation; inhabitants normally are called "subjects" rather than "citizens" as inhabitants of republics are identified; Saudi Arabia, Morocco and some other Arab-Islamic nations in the region of the Persian Gulf qualify as absolute monarchies; some absolute monarchs gain their power through a presumed grant of authority from a divine source; in the past many monarchs claimed and people accepted their authority to rule by "divine right."
8. ABSOLUTISM: when rulers hold total governing power without regard to the people's wishes and where there is no recognized opportunity for the people to change or criticize their leaders; absolutist rulers may be absolute monarchs or they derive their power from control of military forces and/or control over a nation's economic resources.

9. AFFIRMATIVE ACTION: a federal policy first stated in 1969 requiring private and public organizations receiving federal money to set up programs ensuring equal opportunities and fair treatment in employment and education for members of groups that historically had been unfairly treated or denied jobs or admission because they were female or African-American. Under affirmative action, when an employer or educational institution has a "disproportionate representation" of white males, (for example if 95% of 1000 workers in a business or public institution are white males), the institution or business has the "burden of proof" or responsibility for demonstrating that that this is not because of discriminatory hiring policies or practices. Affirmative action came about to more quickly remedy the continuing effects of long standing discrimination against non-white minorities and women. The first test of the constitutionality of affirmative action came in the case of Bakke vs. Regents of the University of California in which the U.S. Supreme Court approved the policy provided that fixed quotas (a certain number or percentage of minority or female employees or students) were not used.

10. AGRARIAN: relating to farming and the conditions of life shared by people who earn their living cultivating land and growing crops.

11. ANARCHY: the absence of formal government or laws regulating and restraining behavior; some philosophers argue that governments are inherently, naturally bad and unjustly limit human freedom and the innate potential of people for positive growth and development; other philosophers assert that human beings are naturally self-destructive and can only survive and reach their full potential under a system of government-provided law and order; to them anarchy brings fear, social chaos and in the end the destruction of civilized life.

12. ANTI-TRUST: government laws aimed at eliminating business monopoly, which is the over-concentration of ownership in manufacturing, banking, or the media.

13. APARTHEID: a government policy of official, legal separation of native black Africans and white European settlers in the nation of South Africa; the policy of apartheid was established in 1950 by the controlling white minority; it ended in 1993.

14. APPEASEMENT: 1930s policy of Great Britain and France intended to prevent World War II by letting Germany violate the Treaty of Versailles and use military force against its neighbors without penalty.
15. ARCHIPELAGO:
any large body of water studded with islands; also the islands themselves, a group of islands; for example the Philippine archipelago comprises hundreds of large and small islands which together are the nation called the Philippines.

16. ASSIMILATION:
to absorb a minority race or culture into the dominant or majority race or culture to the point where most differences all but disappear.

17. BAKKE VS. REGENTS OF UNIVERSITY OF CALIFORNIA:
U.S. Supreme Court case in 1978 confirming the constitutionality of affirmative action polices but also stating that a university official may not make student admission decisions based primarily on a racial quota system (a certain number or percentage) even if the quotas have a "benign" or socially approved purpose. The Bakke case was the first test of the constitutionality of the federal affirmative action policy. It upheld the policy provided that "rigid numerical quotas" were not used to achieve its goals.

18. BLACKLIST:
(verb) identify person or group for punishment by denying them usual rights and benefits of group membership; (noun) list of persons excluded from usual benefits and rights coming with group membership.

19. BROWN VS. BOARD OF EDUCATION OF TOPEKA:
U.S. Supreme Court case (1954) declaring unconstitutional the long standing policy permitting states and local school districts to require racial segregation of students in public schools. Brown is probably the most important case ever decided by the Supreme Court. It overturned a previous Supreme Court decision in Plessy vs. Ferguson, 1896, that said racial segregation of students was constitutional so long as the separate schools were equal.

20. BUYING ON MARGIN:
when a purchaser of stock borrows some of the purchase price from the broker selling the stock with the understanding that the broker may "call" the loan at some future time. The "margin" is the percentage of cash a purchaser must provide to buy the stock. For example, a 5% margin means the purchaser pays only 5% in cash and borrows the remaining 95% of the purchase price from the broker. A buyer assumes that the value of the stock will rise allowing him to sell it, pay off the loan to the broker and still reap a profit. Widespread abuse of this practice contributed to the 1929 stock market crash when, as stock prices began to fall, brokers "called" their loans encouraging a "panic selling," which produced further declines in stock values.

21. CAMPAIGN:
in war a series of coordinated military actions intended to conquer an enemy army; in politics a series of coordinated activities including selection of issues, opinion polling, speeches, media ads, fund-raising, travel intended to win an election.

22. CIVIL DISOBEDIENCE:
the conscious disobedience of laws or policies considered to be unjust or wrong with a willingness to accept punishment for doing so.

History Words .............. Page 11
23. CIVIL RIGHTS:
   the principle that limits the exercise of governmental power over citizens in key areas of political life free speech, free exercise of religious conscience, freedom from government-imposed religion, freedom to petition government and freedom to assemble (to organize) for political purposes and also asserts a government obligation to protect the constitutional rights of citizens against violations by their fellow citizens.

24. CLEAR AND PRESENT DANGER TEST:
   in the case of Schenck vs United States (1919) the U.S. Supreme Court defined conditions (a test) under which the government could properly limit the 1st Amendment guarantee of the right of free speech; the Court said that government may not limit free speech unless it can be shown that the form of speech in question, if allowed to be expressed, would pose a "clear and present danger" to national security.

25. COLD WAR:
   (as opposed to a "hot war") a period of world-wide tensions, threats of war and limited wars from 1947-1989 dominated by fear of a nuclear war between the U.S. and the former Soviet Union with disastrous potential results for the whole world; the Cold War ended with the collapse of the former Soviet Union in 1989 and the withdrawal of Soviet military forces from eastern Europe where they had supported communist political systems since the end of World War II.

26. COLONIZE:
   to move people into a territory to live in order to control the area in which they settle; for example the English sent colonists to the New World (North America) to extend and strengthen their economic influence.

27. COMMAND ECONOMY:
   government makes all of the major decisions about how a nation's economy will operate including what and how much is produced and what the cost of goods and services will be.

28. COMMUNISM:
   political and economic system where governing authority is exclusively exercised by one political party which controls all governing institutions; individual civil liberties including free speech and the opportunity to change government leadership through free, competitive elections are not recognized; communist states also have command economies where government makes all major decisions about what crops are grown, products made and services provided. Originally, the theory or principle of communism stated that major forms of property like land and machines and other necessary means of material well being should be owned in common by all workers because they were the only legitimate producers of wealth and therefore should participate in the economy and share its fruits "each according to his ability and need."

29. COMMUNIST CONTAINMENT:
   a U.S. designed policy in 1947 that aimed at preventing (containing) the Soviet Union from expanding its power beyond where it was at that time.
30. CONSCIENTIOUS OBJECTOR: person who refuses to fight in war because she/he believes killing is morally wrong although he/she is willing to perform non-combatant services for their country in place of military service.

31. CONSERVATION:
actions of citizens and laws and policies of government intending to preserve and protect the natural environment.

32. CONTINENT:
one of the seven great divisions of land on the earth as in the continent of North America or the continent of Antarctica.

33. CONSTITUTIONAL MONARCHY:
a democratic system of government in which a monarch (king, queen, emperor, prince, etc.) is the symbolic, ceremonial head of government or chief of state having very little, if any, real governing authority; the monarch achieved the position through birth into a legally, often religiously recognized royal family whose members over time hold the position for life and, upon death or other reasons for departure, are replaced (succeeded) by another member of the same royal family. The United Kingdom, Sweden, the Netherlands and Denmark are today examples of constitutional monarchies that evolved over many centuries from absolute monarchies.

34. COUNTER CULTURE:
name for a protest movement originating in the late 1960s and early 1970s among young people in the U.S. and other nations rejecting all forms of authority and that advocated radically different attitudes toward sex, dress, drug use, and lifestyle.

35. COUP:
(pronounced "coo") a sudden overthrow of political leadership often through violence or the threat of force; the original, full French term is, Coup d'état (pronounced, "coo-day-tah") meaning forceful overthrow of the state.

36. CRITIQUE:
a constructive, detailed analysis of the objectives, strengths, weaknesses and value of an activity, a product (book, article, film, art work) that is intended to improve the object of the critique.

37. CULTURAL CHARACTERISTIC:
one part of a nation's culture—for example, the role of the family or the status of women in a particular nation.

38. CULTURAL DIVERSITY:
the presence of recognizable, continuing racial, ethnic, religious and socio-economic differences among a population.

39. CULTURAL HERITAGE:
a comprehensive, varied set of beliefs, values, attitudes, practices brought by all of the people who settle a nation (like America) passed from generation to generation that today continue to influence what people think and how they act.
40. CULTURAL:
the sum total of all beliefs, practices, values, art, ways of life, institutions, and knowledge that is shared by people in a nation and that is transmitted to future generations.

41. CULTURAL BOUNDARIES:
the idea that all cultures have a limited range of influence and acceptance rather than being universally accepted and practiced; cultural boundaries do not necessarily coincide with (are the same as) geographic or political boundaries; for example American, English and French culture exist within the nation of Canada.

42. CULTURAL PERSPECTIVE:
a generally accepted attitude, value or way of thinking about life associated with a particular culture; for example, the Native American veneration of nature and belief in the common ownership of the land (rejection of private property).

43. CULTURAL PRACTICE:
a recurring way of behaving or acting, a pattern of behavior, associated with a particular culture; for example, in some early cultures, the tradition of fathers teaching their sons the survival skills of hunting and fishing at a certain age.

44. DEMOCRACY:
a political system guaranteeing a broad range of political rights to citizens who give their consent to be governed for the common good by persons in authority, freely chosen by citizens through periodic, competitive elections.

45. DICTATORSHIP:
a nation controlled by a dominant government leader supported by military or other powerful groups none of whom are elected and where citizens have no right to express critical opinions or openly oppose those in power.

46. DISCRIMINATION: deprivation of one citizen's or a group of citizens' rights by government, private organizations, or individuals based on racial, religious, ethnic, gender, or other unconstitutional reasons.

47. DUE PROCESS OF LAW (DUE PROCESS):
procedures and standards of fairness that government officials including police, judges, and prosecutors must follow before any citizen accused of a crime may be found guilty and as a result be deprived of freedom, property or life; for example, the right of all citizens accused of crime to have the assistance of a defense lawyer whether or not they can pay the cost.

48. ECONOMIC BOUNDARIES:
the definition of the normally physical limits within which there are regular, important transactions between buyers and sellers of goods and services.

49. ENLIGHTENMENT:
18th century European philosophical movement advocating use of human reason, logic, and scientific methods to question traditionally accepted knowledge and beliefs.
50. EUROPEAN UNION (EU):
an organization of 25 European nations for mainly economic purposes featuring a custom market (no trade barriers), a common currency (the Euro), and increasingly seeking cooperation in new areas of common economic, political, and international relations interests; many see the EU as an evolutionary step toward a sovereign United States of Europe.

51. EXPORTER:
a person or business that makes and sells goods and services to buyers in other countries than her/his own.

52. FEDERAL RESERVE SYSTEM:
the central bank of the USA authorized by Congress to regulate loan interest rates and the amount of money in circulation to help keep the American economy strong.

53. FEUDAL SOCIETY:
a combined social, political and economic system based on a fixed hierarchy or power ranking of all individuals into formal groups (peasants, nobility, priests, royalty) with formal obligations of responsibility and service, permanent allocations of land holdings, and political privileges determined by custom, law, and religious authority; feudalism existed in medieval Europe from about 500 AD to about 1450 AD and in some other nations as well in the same period, Japan, for example: Russia was also a feudal system until the communist revolution of 1917 overthrew the Czar (an absolute monarch).

54. FISCAL POLICY:
a tool available to Congress to manage the economy by adjusting tax rates and sources of government revenue.

55. FOREIGN POLICY:
the programs, goals and actions of a nation's government in its relations with other governments in the world.

56. FREE MARKET:
producers and buyers of goods and services bargain about what and how much is produced and what it will cost; principles of supply and demand guide economic decisions.

57. GENOCIDE:
the planned, systematic extermination of a whole racial, ethnic, religious, or cultural group;
usually carried out by a government against a targeted group.

58. GLOBALIZATION:
the long term international integration or connection of economic activity among corporations facilitated by the reduction of trade and labor force barriers between nations and the rapid growth of communications technology permitting instant, continuous flow of information in all forms and management decisions via FAX, the Internet, global positioning systems and satellite-based cellular telephone communication; globalization also refers to the growth of regional political cooperation and the rise in the 1990s of satellite-based television media permitting instantaneous, continuous broadcast of news and information to a mass, world-wide audience; in short, globalization means the rapid elimination of past barriers to human interaction on a global scale.

59. GLOBAL ECONOMY:
   economic activity based on free flow of labor, capital, goods, services, and raw materials across national political boundaries.

60. GREAT DEPRESSION:
   period from 1930 to 1941 when the U.S. economy suffered massive unemployment, low manufacturing production, business and bank failures, personal bankruptcies, and widespread hardship among the American people.

61. IMMIGRATION:
   movement of people from one nation into another nation.

62. IMPERIALISM:
   a policy of expanding a nation's authority by acquiring new land or control over important resources like water, oil, and food that other nations also want.

63. IMPORTER:
   a person or business that buys goods from a foreign producer to sell in his/her own country.

64. INDIGENOUS PEOPLE:
   the original inhabitants of a geographic area, region or nation as in, The indigenous people of what is now the United States of America were what we call Indian (native American) tribes.

65. INDUSTRIALIZATION:
   the long term evolution of a nation's economy toward a system focused on manufacturing goods and where people mainly earn their living working in large, highly mechanized factories.

66. INFLATION:
   the loss of money's buying power when prices rise faster than incomes making goods and services more costly; there are many possible causes of inflation including a scarcity of goods leading to increased demand for them resulting in higher prices or major, rapid increases in incomes encouraging consumers to buy more than normal which, in turn, causes shortages, higher demand and higher prices.

67. INFRASTRUCTURE:
   basic foundation, critical support systems necessary for a successful organization, community, economy, or nation like transportation and communication; also, essential foundation requirements for a building or other physical structure.
68. INTEREST RATES:
the cost of borrowing money; the rate expresses the amount of the cost as, for example, a 10% rate means that for every dollar borrowed, the borrower pay ten cents per dollar borrowed every year until the loan is repaid; governments often borrow large sums of money to pay for major projects or, in some cases, everyday operating expenses.

69. ISOLATIONISM:
the opinion held by many American political leaders in the 1920s and 30s that the U.S. should be active in international affairs only when its security or other vital interests are directly threatened by other nations.

70. ISSUE:
a problem or widely recognized concern over which people disagree and may offer differing solutions; as in, To many people the major environmental issue is the threat of global warming.

71. ISRAELI-PALESTINIAN CONFLICT:
after World War I ended in 1918, Great Britain governed Palestine under a League of Nation's mandate to create a new Jewish state within the territory. Great Britain continued to administer Palestine until 1947, unable to gain agreement between the resident Jewish and Palestinian populations on how to divide lands and governing authority. At that time, Great Britain left Palestine and turned over authority to the United Nations, which, in 1948, finally established the long-promised Jewish state of Israel within the boundaries of Palestine. Arab states in the region, including Egypt, Iraq, Jordan and Syria, immediately declared war on Israel but failed to defeat the army of the new state. Since the end of the 1948 war, new wars and more or less continuous guerilla warfare and terrorism have characterized relations between the Palestinians, their Arab state allies, and the Israelis.

72. JIM CROW LAWS:
laws passed after the Civil War by southern, formerly Confederate, state legislatures and local governments denying freed slaves equal treatment with whites in virtually all areas of public and private life.

73. LABOR UNIONS:
organizations of employees set up to bargain and make contracts with employers on the conditions of and pay for the work of union members.

74. LAISSEZ-FAIRE:
the idea that an economy should be left alone to "run on its own" with minimum government regulation.

75. LAISSEZ-FAIRE ECONOMICS:
a set of economic principles and actions based on the idea that government regulation of the economy hurts economic growth; for example, an example of laissez-faire economics would be to cut taxes and reduce government spending to the minimum.
76. LEGISLATION:
the written, legally binding product of actions taken by a legislative body like Congress, a state legislature or a local council; the collective body of laws on various subjects enacted by a legislative body.

77. LIBEL:
a false publication or writing that seriously damages a person's reputation.

78. MARBURY VS. MADISON:
a case decided by the U.S. Supreme Court in 1803 that confirmed the authority of the Court to interpret the meaning of the Constitution and, in so doing, to declare actions by the other branches of the federal government and by state and local governments "null and void" (non-enforceable) if, in the Courts' view, they do not conform to the principles of the U.S. Constitution.

79. MARSHALL PLAN:
an American program of economic aid to assist the nations of western Europe to recover from the destructive effects of World War II, named for the U.S. secretary of state, George C. Marshall, who originally proposed it at the end of World War II.

80. McCarthyism:
describes the abuse of government power and the persecution of individuals and groups in the early 1950s by U.S. Senator Joseph McCarthy and his supporters; Senator McCarthy sought to take unfair advantage of many Americans' fear of communism and the military threat posed by the former Soviet Union at the height of the Cold War; he very broadly and unfairly labeled many political opinions of which he personally disapproved as communist and the members of organizations he disliked as "un-American" because they once had belonged to organizations he accused of being communist or sympathetic to the former Soviet Union.

81. MINORITIES:
groups united by common racial, ethnic, religious or cultural characteristics; historically minorities often have been victims of discrimination by more powerful majorities.

82. MIXED ECONOMY:
an economy based mainly on private ownership and control of economic resources but where government regulates, promotes and guides activity in selected areas like the banking system, rates of interest on loans and savings, and in programs of business and employment stimulation during economic downturns.

83. MONARCHY:
a political system headed by a monarch either called a king, queen, emperor, or prince who gained the position by birth into a legally, often religiously recognized royal family and who retains the position throughout his or her life or until otherwise removed from or leaves the position to be replaced (succeeded) by another member of the same royal family; monarchies vary greatly in the extent of the monarch's real governing authority.
84. MONETARY POLICY: a tool for managing the economy available to the U.S. Federal Reserve (the U.S. Central Bank) by controlling the amount of money available for loans, the overall money supply, and interest rates on loans.

85. MONOPOLY: concentration of business ownership among a small number of big companies that results in the end of competition allowing the dominant companies to control the price and supply of what they produce.

86. MULTIPLE PERSPECTIVES: using two or more points of view or perspectives to increase understanding; for example, we can know more about the Great Depression if we look at its effects on farmers as well as factory workers.

87. NAZISM: political principles and policies of the National German Democratic Workers' Party (NAZI Party) led by dictator Adolph Hitler in the 1930s that included extermination of Jews (the Holocaust), denial of all political rights to German citizens, and military aggression against other nations leading to World War II.

88. NEW DEAL: a comprehensive set of government actions and programs intended to help the U.S. economy recover from the Great Depression proposed by the administration of President Franklin D. Roosevelt after his election in 1932.

89. NORTH ATLANTIC TREATY ORGANIZATION (NATO): a military alliance created in 1947 of western European nations, Canada, and the United States that intended to guarantee the collective security of all its members against possible attack by the Soviet Union and its satellites (unwilling) allies in eastern Europe.

90. OPPORTUNITY COSTS: real economic cost of a good or service measured by the value of what might otherwise have been produced.

91. PARLIAMENTARY DEMOCRACY: a system of government using elections to choose officials, that protects the civil liberties of its citizens and that merges executive and legislative functions of government rather than constitutionally separating executive, legislative, and judicial powers as in the American system of government; for example the nation's chief executive (usually called the prime minister) and other major government executives are also voting members of the legislative body called the parliament, as in Great Britain; the prime minister and the other chief executives of government hold their executive offices only so long as a majority of the members of parliament permit.
92. PARTISAN POLITICS:
actions and statements about public policy issues identified with political parties;
election campaign tactics and strategies adopted by parties; attempts to promote the ideas,
goals, and influence of one political party over another.

93. PETITION:
a formal, written request from citizens that government officials take a particular action.

94. PHILOSOPHES:
any of the social, philosophical, and political writers of the 18th century French Enlightenment.

95. PHYSICAL CHARACTERISTICS:
something that may be seen, touched, measured that helps describe differences and similarities among different peoples and nations.

96. PLESSY VS. FERGUSON:
the U.S. Supreme Court case in 1896 that made constitutional the legally required segregation of black and white citizens in public facilities like restaurants, theaters, stores, hotels, public transportation and in public schools so long as separate facilities were available for white and black users that were equal in quality (the doctrine of "separate but equal").

97. POLICY (GOVERNMENT):
a plan of action, goals and intentions composed of a mix of laws, statements, regulations and official practices as in, The policy of President Lincoln during the Civil War was to preserve the union by any means necessary.

98. POLITICAL BOUNDARY:
the legal, recognized territorial boundaries separating one nation from others or separating one governmental unit in a nation from other units in the same nation
as among the American states.

99. PRESIDENTIAL DEMOCRACY:
a system of government using elections to select officials, that protects the civil liberties of its citizens and that constitutionally separates the legislative, executive, and judicial functions of government; the major difference between presidential and parliamentary democracies is that the chief executive (called the president in the U.S.)
is elected directly by the people, has a separate constitutional grant of authority, and a fixed term of office that is not dependent on the support of the legislative branch (called Congress in the U.S.).

100. PROGRESSIVE REFORMERS:
citizens seeking improvements in American life, 1890-1925, including improving working conditions for women, outlawing child labor, ending political corruption, regulating food and drug production, installing the eight hour work day, and ending business monopolies.
101. PROPAGANDA:
messages directed at a whole population in various forms and media (writing, speaking, electronic media, parades, mass demonstrations, symbols) intended to persuade recipients to believe in and act in support of the political objectives of government leaders; propaganda often distorts or flagrantly disregards truth in favor of appeals to mass fears and irrational, often negative emotions.

102. PROTECTIONISM:
government policy protecting domestic producers against competition from foreign competitors often achieved through a system of taxes or tariffs consumers pay when they buy foreign-produced goods.

103. RATIFICATION:
formal, final approval of proposed changes to a government constitution.

104. RECESSION:
a period of reduced economic activity, increased unemployment, and loss of jobs much less severe than a full depression like the one of the 1930s.

105. RED SCARE:
exaggerated fears of communism, revolution and political radicalism in the U.S. during the early 1920s caused by a successful communist revolution in 1917 in Russia.

106. REGULATION:
government standards and rules intended to define proper and improper conduct by private organizations and citizens with the goal of ensuring public safety, health, and well-being.

107. RENAISSANCE:
the great revival of art, literature and learning in Europe in the 14th, 15th and 16th centuries marking the transition from the medieval world to the modern world; the movement began in Italy and slowly moved to other countries; there are distinctive styles of architecture, painting, and literature associated with the renaissance period.

108. REPARATIONS:
payment of the costs of war by the defeated nation to the victors.

109. REPUBLIC:
a representative form of democracy where actual governing is done by elected and appointed officials who function through permanent, large institutions like the U.S. Congress or the British Parliament and who are responsible to citizens for how they govern and may be replaced through periodic elections; the opposite form of democracy would be a direct democracy in which citizens themselves meet periodically to make major community decisions as in ancient Athens or today in the United States in New England town meetings.

110. ROE VS. WADE:
the U.S. Supreme Court case in 1973 that, by interpretation of the 9th Amendment to the U.S. Constitution, first recognized a constitutional right to privacy, the major effect of which was to make unconstitutional state laws making abortion under any instance legal.
circumstances illegal; that decision stimulated very intense, conflicting reactions between those favoring the decision as protecting what they termed a “woman’s right to choose” whether or not to continue a pregnancy and those advocating what they called a “pro-life” viewpoint opposing the decision.

111. SLANDER:
oral communication of false statements intended to injure a person’s reputation.

112. SOCIAL CONTRACT:
the idea that the power of government to make laws regulating how people will live, to tax citizens, and in other ways to limit the freedom of individuals must come from a voluntary grant of authority to government by the people themselves and that, whenever government abuses its authority, the people may take it back; the social contract idea was set forth to refute the traditional idea of a permanent “divine (God-given) right to rule” enjoyed by monarchs throughout most of human history.

113. SOCIAL REFORM:
attempt to improve the conditions of life of people in a society or community usually carried out through government action.

114. SOCIALISM:
economic system in which major means of production and distribution of goods and services are controlled by government leaders chosen in free, majority-rule elections in which citizens enjoy full protection of their political rights.

115. SPECIALIZATION:
tendency for members of workforce to focus on limited tasks and sets of skills to achieve maximum efficiency and productivity from their efforts.

116. STANDARD OF LIVING:
a comparative measure of the material values and benefits enjoyed by a population group or a nation.

117. STEREOTYPE:
an over-simplified, widely accepted, fixed image or conception of an object, person, or group, often unfair in the way that it falsely labels and categorizes whole groups of people.

118. SUBURBANIZATION:
gradual, long term movement of people out of cities to live and make new communities in surrounding areas.

119. SUFFRAGE:
the right and ability to vote in elections of government leaders.

120. SUPPLY AND DEMAND (LAWS OF):
the idea that the cost of things we buy and sell is mainly the result of how strongly people want them (demand) and their availability (supply) as in, the cost of computers has dropped over time as the demand for them increased the available supply.
121. TECHNOLOGICAL INNOVATIONS:
new applications of science to practical uses and needs.

122. TERRORISM:
a set of violent actions, destructive motives and plans whose origins and rationale are not necessarily well known or understood, intended to create widespread fear and insecurity among whole populations; terrorism often leads to actual loss of life and property as in the September 11, 2001, attacks on New York City, Washington, D.C., and the crash of a passenger airliner in Pennsylvania.

123. THEOCRACY:
aucratic system of political and social organization based upon religious principles including strict codes of personal belief, behavior, morality, and even dress where religious leaders also control the government; Iran today qualifies as a theocracy.

124. TREATY OF VERSAILLES:
signed in Versailles, France, 1919, formally ending World War I; winners of war (U.S., France, England and Italy) forced defeated Germans to accept harsh terms; often seen as a cause of the rise of Hitler and World War II.

125. TRUMAN DOCTRINE:
a program of military and economic aid to nations threatened by communist take-over announced in 1947 and named for its author, President Harry Truman.

126. WARSAW PACT:
a collective security military alliance created and led by the Soviet Union in 1949 between itself and other communist nations of eastern Europe as a counter to the U.S-led collective security military alliance called the North Atlantic Treaty Organization created in 1947.
