J. Darlene Hayes, Producer

For over fifteen years, J. Darlene Hayes, a former Daytonian, has excelled in the competitive field of television production. As senior producer and long-time staff member for "Donahue," Ms. Hayes won three prestigious Emmy Awards, 1979-80, 1980-81, and 1985-86. Currently featured as "Dear Darlene" on the syndicated talk show "House Party," she is also producer of "The Marsha Warfield Show" for NBC. Ms. Hayes has also produced for such shows as "Geraldo," "The Late Show," and "Front Page People," and she has written for "Amen" and "Best Catches," among others. A native of Topeka, Kansas, Darlene Hayes was educated at Washburn University in Topeka and has received training in television writing and improvisational acting/writing at UCLA and the Second City Company, respectively.

Darlene Hayes is the mother of two, Toi Hayes and Robert Hayes, III. Robert, a recent Wright State graduate (B.A., Communication '90), was involved in a number of WSU programs and activities, including the MODELS program, Alpha Phi Alpha fraternity, and the Black Student Union.
