Differentiated Learning

Enrichment Activity:

- The use of technology in this lesson plan is essential for displaying the primary source documents and footage that are necessary in demonstrating the advertising and cultural norms of the 1950s. Most of the studio pictures (such as the cast photos from Leave it to Beaver, and I Love Lucy), magazine cover, advertisements and original footage that are used in the PowerPoint presentation are not easily reproducible. These resources are not available for reproduction in slide, transparency or good quality paper copies.

- Through using PowerPoint presentation, students are presented with a clean, attention-grabbing and informative lecture that would not be as effective if the educator were using chalk and chalkboard to discuss his/her points. This PowerPoint is able to link educators to useful Web sites at the click of a button and illustrates points with action that an educator could not reproduce on the board.

Additional Instruction:

- Go to the local or school library and check out many 1950s yearbooks. Show students the types of clothing worn. Explain the roles of men versus women at this time. You could also try to find 1950s home economics books which show that women were learning how to cook, clean, etc. for husbands later in life. With this, show clips from the movie Pleasantville, directed by Gary Ross, New Line Cinemas, 1998, relating to men and women’s roles, and “suburbia.”

Core Activity

Scroll down the lesson plan to Day 138 (p.116-118) and have students discuss the effects that this prosperity had on American society and culture. Write generalizations about the changes in American life in the 1950s.

Differentiated Learning

Enrichment Activity:

- Challenge students to draw a political cartoon describing the phrase "middle of the road" as it relates to Eisenhower's policies.

- Challenge students to elaborate on reasons why they feel the events discussed in the lesson led to a cooling or warming of relations between the superpowers.

- Challenge students to describe two major changes that occurred in the 1950s due to economic growth and prosperity.

- Challenge students to search for a poem written about current social problems such as poverty, drugs, and violence. Ask them to mount the poem on a letter-sized sheet of paper and find photographs or drawings to illustrate it.

- Challenge students to create a world map that shows the hot spots of foreign policy during the Eisenhower administration.

Additional Instruction:

- Ask students to make at least six generalizations about how life changed for Americans in the 1950s. Then have them write a supporting sentence for each generalization.

---

Vocabulary

- prosperity
- culture
- mass marketing
- mass-produced housing
• Have small groups of students discuss and rank changes in the 1950s. Ask each group to write a statement about which development they think had the greatest and most lasting influence on American life. Invite groups to share their comments.

Enrichment Activity:
- Assign students to research and report on one of the following:
  - The relationship between President Truman and Senator McCarthy from the time of the telegram until Truman left office in 1953.
  - The effects of the McCarthy “witch hunt” on the life of a famous American who was blacklisted following the investigation.
  - The relationship between McCarthyism and Arthur Miller’s play The Crucible.
  - Collaborate with a language arts colleague to develop interdisciplinary activities on this topic.

Additional Instruction:
- Discuss the meaning of the terms espionage, perjury, blacklisted.
- Discuss why the House Committee on the Un-American Activities (HUAC) focused on the entertainment industry. Ask, “Why do you think some Americans feared communist influence in movies, radio, and television? Have students research and report on the entertainment figures who testified before the committee and those who were blacklisted.

- Imagine you are a court reporter at either the Hiss trial or the trial of Ethel and Julius Rosenberg. Write a letter to a friend abroad explaining the significance of one of the trials.

Additional Instruction:

- Discuss with students what is meant by McCarthy's "communist witch hunt" and how this was looked at as a witch hunt.

Additional Resources

Supplemental Texts:

- Goodwin, Doris Kearns. Wait Till Next Year: A Memoir. NY: Simon & Schuster, 1997. (Especially pages 179-183 the author’s childhood during the Army-McCarthy hearings. Read the pages aloud to the class—or listen to that part of the story from the audiobook, also available.)

History:

E. Analyze connections between World War II, the Cold War and contemporary conflicts:

8. Explain how the Cold War and related conflicts influenced U.S. foreign policy after 1945 with emphasis on:

- The Korean War and the Vietnam War.

Core Activity

Students investigate the decision to intervene in Korea, which grew out of the tense atmosphere that characterized Cold War politics.

Interdisciplinary Connections

Language Arts

Differentiated Learning

Enrichment Activity:

- Explain to students that demilitarized zones between hostile nations or groups have been set up in other parts of the world. Have students work with partner to gather information about the current status of the DMZ of North and South Korea. They may also research other countries that have contained DMZ’s such as Israel and Vietnam. Students can present their findings to the class.

Additional Instruction:

- Organize the class into small groups. Tell each group to create a timeline or graphic organizer that illustrates how developments in the Korean after WWII were part of the overall Cold War struggle between the SU and the U.S. over the spread and containment of communism. Have students from each group present and interpret its creation to the class. Then ask volunteers to summarize why Korea was divided.

- Have students create a flowchart that shows the course of the Korean War and at what points various fighting forces entered the war. Call on volunteers to present their flowcharts.
Nuclear Fallout (1-4 days)

| Social Studies Skills and Methods: B. Use data and evidence to support or refute a thesis: 3. Analyze one or more issues and present a persuasive argument to defend a position. | Core Activity
Students learn how drilling for nuclear war became a part of life's routine in the 1950s and, like fire drills today in the school, was taken very seriously.
Interdisciplinary Connections
Science | nuclear fallout, ideologies, civil defense, fallout shelter, “duck and cover” |

Differentiated Learning

Enrichment Activity:
- Invite students to imagine they are in a social studies class in the 1950s. Hold a “current events” discussion about proposals for a nuclear test ban. Remind students to keep in mind the Cold War tensions and nuclear anxieties of the time as they role play the class discussion. Conclude by having students in their 1950s role vote on whether they favor or oppose a ban on nuclear testing.

Additional Instruction:
- Have the students participate in a “duck and cover” drill. Afterwards, ask the students how “serious” a drill it was, but then ask if it would have really have protected you. Most likely at this point they will be laughing over the school actually thinking the students could be saved by this! If you can find the movie Blast from the Past, directed by Hugh Wilson, (1999; New Line Cinema), and then show students clips of it to show what a fallout shelter was and how people planned to live in them.

| F. Identify major historical patterns in the domestic affairs of the United States during the 20th century and explain their significance: | Core Activity
Students learn about the U.S. Supreme Court case that forced the integration of public schools and meet the individuals who experienced segregation, fought to dismantle that institution, and integrated the public school system of New Kent County, Virginia. | Jim Crow, National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP), desegregation |

Enrichment Activity:

- History of My School
  Segregation was largely a national problem; communities across the U.S. were affected by the civil rights movement and the fight over desegregation. At the same time, local, regional, and state factors greatly influenced communities’ experiences with desegregation.

- If possible, have students use newspapers, yearbooks, and other primary materials to construct a history of their school or a school in their community from 1954-1970 (essentially from the Brown decision through the implementation of the Green decision). Students should then write a paper comparing the situation in their community and school with the situation in New Kent County, Virginia. Was the school segregated or integrated during this time period? How was the situation similar or dissimilar to that in New Kent County? What local, regional, or state factors might contribute to these similarities or differences? What, if any, physical differences existed between local schools and the New Kent schools, and what if any significance do those differences have in the history of segregation and desegregation?

- Investigate Dayton’s desegregation order in the 1970s.

Additional Instruction:

Students will see how the Brown decision affected other schools.

1. View this site and answer the question.

2. Use this site to get background information.
3. The Road to Educational Equality. Referring back to the information in “Setting the Stage” ask students to circle the dates they find and underline the event(s) that occurred. Next, have students construct a timeline of events related to school desegregation that are connected to the Prudence Crandall Museum and Little Rock Central High School. Encourage them to use their textbooks or other sources to fill in any gaps. After the timelines are complete, hold a class discussion to explore some of the challenges faced by African Americans and white supporters in the struggle for integrated schools.

Afterward, ask students to name the points that they considered to be the most effective.

Additional Instruction:

- Share this excerpt with students from the Brown V Board decision: "to separate (black students) from others of similar age and qualifications solely because of their race generates a feeling of inferiority as to their status in the community that may affect their hearts and minds in ways unlikely to ever be undone." Lead a discussion of what the comment means and how this Supreme Court decision reversed Plessy v Ferguson.

Core Activity

This lesson extends student knowledge about racism, segregation, busing and discrimination in education in the United States during the Civil Rights era of the 1950s-1970s. It investigates the 1954 Supreme Court case of Brown v. Board of Education and the effects of the decision in Dayton, Ohio. The teacher utilizes a simulation of discrimination based on the model of Jane Elliott's "Blue Eyes, Brown Eyes" in the classroom which illuminates the issues surrounding court-ordered busing at the time of strict racial desegregation de facto (without sanction of law) and de jure (according to law).

Find the entire lesson on the Web site:

racism, segregation, busing, discrimination, Brown v. Board of Education, de facto, de jure
A. Analyze ways people achieve governmental change, including political action, social protest and revolution.

1. Describe the ways in which government policy has been shaped and set by the influence of political parties, interest groups, lobbyists, the media and public opinion with emphasis on:
   c. Civil rights legislation.

B. Explain how individual rights are relative, not absolute, and describe the balance between individual rights, the rights of others, and the common good.

4. Analyze instances in which the rights of individuals were restricted including:
   d. African-Americans during the civil rights movement.

Social Studies Skills and Methods:

A. Evaluate the reliability and credibility of sources:

1. Determine the credibility of sources by considering the following:
   c. Recognition of stereotypes.

B. Use data and evidence to support or refute a thesis:

3. Analyze one or more issues and present a persuasive argument to defend a position.

Differentiated Learning

Enrichment Activity:

- Have all students interview a resident of Dayton at that time.
- Have students group and select an interview to visit and handle all arrangements including what questions the class will need to ask.

Additional Instruction:

- Have students pair up to share their interviews. Use this time to review how oral histories are an excellent primary source to use.
Additional Resources

- Web site lists additional resources.

- Have students research other minorities who excelled in sports: Jim Thorpe, Jesse Owens, Roy Camponella, etc.

- What challenges did they face in gaining acceptance in their sport?

Additional Instruction:

- Organize students into small groups to role play leaders of a workshop for civil rights workers in the use of nonviolent tactics. Direct them to develop a handout for the workshop on the tactic of nonviolence. Tell them that handouts should include a definition of nonviolence and some examples of nonviolent action that might be used in the civil rights struggle. Call on groups to instruct the class on nonviolent tactics and to explain why learning and using this approach can benefit the civil rights movement.
