Campus Ministry's not a place... it's people

A day with Campus Ministry . . . Wow! How do you describe it? It's just full of people. People coming . . . going; people waiting . . . calling; people praying . . . playing . . . People coming into Campus Ministry . . . people going out of Campus Ministry . . . people meeting people. People wandering, wondering, asking, answering . . . just people everywhere.

People alive, awake, aware. Aware? Aware of what? . . . Life-love-hate-God-classes-marriage-prayer-tensions-guitar Masses-drugs-alcohol-roommates-minority rights-studies-dates-farm workers-theology-Nixon-Ford-lectures-week-ends-scriptures . . .

All the facets of life are reflected in the spectrum of a Campus Ministry day. These are the sort of things that find their way into the center. They are not just words with dashes between them. They're the problems of people who are alive, searching for answers, looking for guidance, direction, meaning . . . and so much more.

Being a Campus Minister is more than just merely providing Sunday Worship; it involves dealing with individuals at a time of their life when they are just becoming aware of their problems, facing critical questions and looking for responsible answers. Being a Christian is more than just attending Sunday service; it involves a way of life. Being a Christian in a changing society and environment as well as a changing Church puts still greater responsibility on the individual. There are old traditions to be maintained; there are new ones to develop; there is a life to be lived; and there is a spirituality to be achieved.

Centers

Sinclair Community College

Campus Ministry continues growing in its outreach to the Sinclair Community College community. Our ministry at Sinclair focuses its efforts through an ecumenical staff of a Roman Catholic priest and a Protestant seminary student working in behalf of the Dayton Area Campus Ministry.

The Campus Ministry Center is located on the third floor of the Business and Technology building at 5316. The Center offers an atmosphere for counseling, small discussion groups and referral services. Current announcements and campus ministry notices are posted on the door bulletin board at 5316.

Wright State University

The Campus Ministry Center is an ecumenical facility serving as a base for the Campus Ministry. Built by the Catholic Archdiocese, the Center is also referred to as the "Newman Center". The Center is open as a place to drop in, to relax and enjoy interesting conversation and quiet. It provides a flexible lounge area and offices for the Campus Ministry Team. The Center also maintains a borrowing library, collections of periodicals and articles on religious and social topics, and extensive files of organizations and involvements that may interest people. It is located in the wooded area just across the parking lot from Allyn Hall.
