

1967

Lecture Room Skit

Wright State University Faculty

Follow this and additional works at: https://corescholar.libraries.wright.edu/alternative_newspapers

Part of the History Commons, and the Mass Communication Commons

Repository Citation

Wright State University Faculty (1967). Lecture Room Skit. : University Archives; Wright State University.

This Article is brought to you for free and open access by the University Archives at CORE Scholar. It has been accepted for inclusion in Wright State University Alternative Newspaper Collection by an authorized administrator of CORE Scholar. For more information, please contact library-corescholar@wright.edu.

Seigers & Rossmillers

LECTURE ROOM SKIT

Scene could open with "foreign professor" at desk about to perform experiment with flying horse. Several people playing students.

Prof. speaks nonsense in jibberish, yet students frantically take notes; visiting professor is introduced, also speaking unrecognizable dialect (perhaps bring in Atwater's & Seiger's corny jokes re how can I be so British when I feel so Yiddish; my mother was from Italy--A Napoli Woods??). Idea for one dialogue exchange: the foreign professor might ask the group if they understand him all right, to which they reply, yes, unanimously, except for one female student who rises and says irately, in a heavy accent identical to the professors, "I don't understand a thing you are saying".

Students ask the usual questions: will this be on the test? grade on curve? One student may come in late and breathless, alibiing that there was no parking space and he had to park down by the Airway Inn.

Expand . . . Maybe work in Atwater's sliderule joke?