The next forum in Wright State University's Let's Talk series will focus on options to integrate programs in health and human services into one unit or college.

The forum will be held on:

Monday, November 27

3 to 4:30 p.m.

Student Union Apollo Room

The forum is open to the campus community and the public. It will be streamed live for those who cannot attend in person at wright.edu/streaming.

The forum will feature a panel that includes Joseph Keferl, dean of the College of Education and Human Services; Travis Doom, professor of computer science and president of the Faculty Senate; and Bryan Bucklew, a Wright State graduate and president and CEO of the Greater Dayton Area Hospital Association.

Following short presentations from the panel members, campus constituents can ask questions and initiate dialogue in a town hall setting. Wright State President Cheryl B. Schrader will moderate the discussion.

The university is reviewing its academic organization during the 2017-18 academic year. One goal of the review is to develop recommendations for an academic alignment that provides a broad scope of health-related education and career opportunities for students while fostering multidisciplinary research and programs.

Learn more about the academic organization review at wright.edu/about/topics-open-for-comment.

Part of President Schrader's focus on campus conversation, Let's Talk forums allow the Wright State community to discuss one issue or theme at the university. The series seeks to create a safe space for open, informed discussion while providing the community with accurate information and perspective.

Suggestions from the university community for future discussion are welcome and can be made on the Office of President's webpage.
