

January 1969

What are you doing the rest of your Life?

Wright State University

Follow this and additional works at: https://corescholar.libraries.wright.edu/archives_wsu_brochures

Repository Citation

Wright State University (1969). What are you doing the rest of your Life?.

This Brochure is brought to you for free and open access by the University Archives at CORE Scholar. It has been accepted for inclusion in Wright State University Brochures by an authorized administrator of CORE Scholar. For more information, please contact corescholar@www.libraries.wright.edu, library-corescholar@wright.edu.

What are you doing the rest of your life?

"College isn't for everybody." That's a line you may have heard recently but, frankly, it's less true today than ever before. Consider -

1. College isn't just for people who plan to get a college degree. At Wright State many of our students are taking courses not to gain college credits but simply to learn. It may be learning something as ordinary as basic English (many people feel the need for extra training) or math. It might be to learn a specific skill either needed now on the job or a skill the next promotion may require. It could be simply learning something for the sheer fun of learning it - theater arts, music appreciation, the history of the Reformation. Even calculus.
2. College isn't just for people who can go full time during the day. Over half the students at Wright State take one or more courses at night. The average age of those night school students is over 30 and about half are men, and half are women. Incidentally, if you decide later to seek a college degree, these credits can be applied toward your degree's requirements.
3. A college degree is still the prerequisite for most of the top-paying and/or interesting jobs (in fact, many of our current students are attending the University now to change their present career). A degree helps open doors for job interviews. It says, "I cared enough to prepare." Even attending college (without graduating) can give you an edge on a job application.

College education is important and Wright State has over 100 programs and majors which can enrich your life, upgrade your skills or prepare you for a rewarding and interesting career.

Please take a close look at the courses in this schedule. If you're not seeking a degree, just fill out the short form registration on page three of the schedule. If you mail it to us by December 3rd, that's all there is to it. We'll bill you later. If you are seeking a degree, please call our admissions office at 873-2214 for further information.

But act now. The winter quarter begins early in January and all applications must be in by December 28 of this year.

Wright State University