

In figurative painting, Willem de Kooning and Fairfield Porter tended to use their own image sometimes generalized and often placed in an interior or studio environment.