7-17-1919

Cedarville Boy Sits Outside Castle Gates Watching for Kaiser

Fred F. Marshall

Follow this and additional works at: https://corescholar.libraries.wright.edu/special_ms53_newspapers

Part of the History Commons

Repository Citation
CEDARVILLE BOY SITS OUTSIDE CASTLE GATES WATCHING FOR KAISER

"Ted" Richards of Cedarville, Ohio, is affectionately known as "Chief" by his friends and neighbors. He is a member of the local Boy Scouts, and whenever they have a "blue sport" and need assistance, they call on Chief. He is known throughout the county, and wherever he goes, the name of Chief is on everyone's lips.

It was Chief's third year of instructing the group, and he had just returned from a trip to the west coast. The group had been working on a project to build a new clubhouse, and Chief had been able to bring back some valuable tools and materials.

On the day of the dedication ceremony, Chief arrived early to take care of some last-minute details. When the time came to open the gates, Chief was in position, ready to lead the way.

As the group filed into the new clubhouse, Chief turned to one of his friends and said, "Well, this is it, boys. We did it!"

And so, Chief Richards, a true leader and friend to all, watched the dedication of the new Cedarville Castle Gates, knowing that it was a day to remember.
Pathe laboratories at Paris which I have mentioned. His name is Carl, and he is the son of a well-known tailor in Paris. He has three brothers and a sister, and they all work in different shops in the city. One of them is a tailor, and the other two are accountants. Carl's sister, Julia, is a student at the Sorbonne.

I have been talking to a Dutchman here who says that he has been to America. I asked him whether he had any interesting stories to tell, and he said that he had. He told me about his visit to New York City, where he stayed for two weeks. He said that he had never seen such a large city before, and that it was very exciting. He also told me about his stay in Boston, where he visited Harvard University and the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

Carl also told me about his family in Germany. He said that his father was a tailor, and that his mother was a housewife. He said that he had two younger brothers, and that they were both doing well in school. He also said that his family was very proud of him, and that they had all been to Paris to see him. I asked Carl if he had any plans for the future, and he said that he was thinking about going to England to study business. He said that he wanted to be a successful businessman, and that he was willing to work hard to achieve his goals.

I was impressed by Carl's determination and his positive attitude. I hope that he will be successful in his endeavors, and that he will be able to make a good life for himself and his family. I wish him all the best in his future endeavors.