Washington’s Dentures

When George Washington was inaugurated for his first term as president in 1789, he had only one natural tooth remaining and was wearing his first full set of dentures made by John Greenwood. Previously he had had partial dentures which were held in place by hooking them around the remaining teeth. The Greenwood dentures had a base of hippopotamus ivory carved to fit the gums. The upper denture had ivory teeth and the lower plate consisted of eight human teeth fastened by gold pivots that screwed into the base. The set was secured in his mouth by spiral springs.
5 sets of dentures in last 10 years

- Washington's next set of dentures was made in 1791 and a third in 1795, for which he paid sixty dollars. James Gardette made a large and very clumsy set for him in 1796. Apparently Washington was not pleased with these dentures and may have ordered another set from Greenwood in 1797. Washington often returned dentures for adjustments and repairs, at one time complaining that "they were forcing his lips out." His final set was made in 1798, the year before he died.

for there are many victories that lead up to the final climactic one. The thrill of the kickoff, the first down play, making the first down, crossing the 50, the bonus of the extra down as the drive gets inside the opponent’s 40, the goal line offense, the decision to try the placement, and even the fumble along the way that changes the complexion of the drive — all of these are mini victories or mini defeats on the way to the touchdown, which leads along the way to the final victory or to the chasm of defeat. All of these serve to make it a great contest. a great

Over the years, the Old Man's favorite class was '37, with Trippy, Crawford, and Byrd. There were 18 Psi O's living in the house, (60 in the whole class), almost all of them lived there the whole four years. Rooms were $5/mos, Board $22 and Social dues were a dollar. In the 1940's-60's, the average graduating class had 50-60 Psi O's. At one time there were over 200 active members. The Old Man estimates he's known around 2100-2400 dentists. Dr. Dew (Psi '34) says "Carl has been an institution both at Psi Omega and Ohio State. He knows more dentists by first name than any other person"

CENTENARY CELEBRATES CAREER OF DR. CARL O. BOUCHER
October 14, 1904—March 11, 1975

The College of Dentistry held a ceremony on October 14 to commemorate the centenary anniversary of the birth of the late Dr. Carl O. Boucher, a former faculty member for whom the College’s third-floor Carl O. Boucher Memorial Conference Room is named. Dr. Boucher was a prosthodontist, educator, researcher, and editor, known as the man who wrote the book about complete dentures,” according to Dr. Robert Severson, DDS ’75, MS ’79, clinical assistant professor of restorative and prosthodontics, who published an essay about Boucher’s life in The Journal of Prosthetic Dentistry, in October, 2004.

A 1927 graduate of the OSU College of Dentistry, Dr. Boucher practiced in downtown Columbus and began teaching at the College in 1928. He served as chairman of the division of prosthodontics at the College from 1940 to 1970. In 1951 he became founding editor of The Journal of Prosthetic Dentistry, continuing to serve until 1973. He developed a division of dental laboratory technology at Ohio State, using his Dental Prosthetic Laboratory Manual as the instructional text.

Dr. Boucher was highly involved in the dental profession, serving in leadership roles in many professional associations, and receiving many honors. He lectured extensively throughout the U.S. and Canada, and also internationally. After a brief illness, Dr. Boucher died on March 11, 1975.

With the support of 167 charter sponsors from twenty-six U.S. states as well as England, Sweden and Singapore, the Carl O. Boucher Prosthodontic Conference was established in his honor in 1965. It continues to be held annually in Columbus. The 40th conference will be held in April 2005. More information is available at the Boucher Web page at www.boucherweb.com.
Dr. Carl Boucher centenary held at OSU

COLUMBUS - A centenary occurred Oct. 14 at Ohio State University's Carl O. Boucher Memorial conference room at the OSU School of Dentistry. Carl was a preeminent educator, researcher, and editor of the Journal of Prosthetic Dentistry and lectured across the country and around the world in the middle of the 20th century.

To honor his quest for excellence, the OSU School of Dentistry established an annual conference bearing his name in 1990 and a memorial room in 1996.

At the centenary, Dr. Menard stated that only a few years ago, every dental school in Canada had at least one well-placed "Boucher Day" on its faculty.

The centenary was chaired by Dr. Robert Stevenson, faculty member at OSU School of Dentistry and treasurer of the Boucher conference. He developed and delivered Carl's biographical sketch.

Observing OSU procedure, Carl became an emeritus professor at age 65 with full retirement at age 70.

Inevitably, stepping aside, he accepted a teaching position in prosthodontics at the university in 1969.

His death at 71 prevented this fulfillment. He and his wife Florence are buried at Shaffner Cemetery.

A descendant of two early Williams County families, Boucher and Opdyke, Carl was a 1922 graduate of Bryan High School.

He graduated from OSU dental school in 1927. By 1942 he was named chairman of the division of prosthodontics.

Carl had two brothers, Dean Boucher DDS who had a dental practice in Bryan and Richard, owner of the former Bryan Canning Company. Carl's son Jacques is also a dentist.

Attending the 100th anniversary of Dr. Carl Opdyke Boucher's birth held at OSU were former Bryan. Carl's brother Richard Boucher, niece/nephew of brother Leon. Shirley Boucher Berl and cousin, George Opdyke. Family from Columbus, and James Boucher DDS, wife Robert and grandchildren, Timothy and Mark.
