Summer 2004

Poems by David Keiser

David Keiser
david.keiser@montclair.edu

Follow this and additional works at: http://corescholar.libraries.wright.edu/ejie

Part of the Curriculum and Instruction Commons, Curriculum and Social Inquiry Commons, Disability and Equity in Education Commons, Special Education Administration Commons, and the Special Education and Teaching Commons

Repository Citation

This Poetry is brought to you for free and open access by CORE Scholar. It has been accepted for inclusion in Electronic Journal for Inclusive Education by an authorized administrator of CORE Scholar. For more information, please contact corescholar@www.libraries.wright.edu.
Eggs cracked open mean one of two things:
Someone will make an omelet, or Something will enter the world raw and alone.

Discarded plastic garbage bags sliced open like skin peeled Off a chicken breast mean one of two things:
Either a tenant discarded a sharp object, which pierced the plastic,
Or a hungry can collector found it.

When doors slam shut
When phones ring unanswered
When letters crumple under fist
We strand our children like rice farmers without hats
We leave them in the sun to burn, to sear their flesh into adulthood. Alone.

Alone our offspring sleep outside Alone our seeds lie unfertilized Alone our minors court major problems.

Visible lesions lash out at annoyed shoppers Feces smear our pristine landscape
As God's children wait out the day to retake their turf.

When eggs crack open we brace ourselves:
Will the chicks click in the world?
Will they flourish like flowers or Flounder like fish dying slow deaths Over and over?
American Disability
By David Keiser

My dad sleeps in a tool shed behind our house off Fruitvale Avenue Sometimes he comes in to eat or to pee
But then he has to leave at least until he stops drinking And stinking up our whole house

He used to work a long time ago
Now he gets checks in the mail

Last year a car hit him
He was drunk in the street
In front of our house

He went to the hospital and got a pin in his leg
Now when he drinks we wheel him to the shed

My dad's so funny when he gets drunk Makes me laugh cuz he so dumb Like being hit by a car and acting a fool
Now he sleeps in the shed with all the tools
Energetic Elizabeth

By David Keiser

Energetic Elizabeth
Writes with a rigor
While attending college
And living with vigor

Energetic Elizabeth
Wheels herself to class
Every week she prepares Stories to amass

Energetic Elizabeth
Keeps her head high Can’t help but notice
How hard she tries

Energetic Elizabeth
Can’t walk skate or run
But she reminds us all
She still has fun

I wonder if she knows How she inspires
Those with working legs
But tepid desires
No Notebook

By David Keiser

Cuz it’s not cool to bring to school
And you think it’s a waste of money you don’t have anyway

Maybe you bring paper/yellow and folded pocketsize Or twirled up your sleeve/or maybe You borrow white frilly filler paper from friends

Or maybe the pencil lead smudges your assignment Or you say you hate what you wrote anyway That you’d rather just talk it out

But your resistance is not about the paper or the pencil lead
But about some doubting demons inside your head

You ask why even try to write
What you so easily can say aloud?

Maybe you think
You can’t write
At all

Well, what if notebooks were cool and didn’t cost you money
And the teacher accepted folded and twirled and smudged work
And you could just dictate your words

Would you write then?
Would you write then?
Ugly Blues

By David Keiser

I look in the mirror still see my old face no matter what still see my same old face when will it be that I age into grace all through high school people said I too ugly friends and enemies: both said I real ugly took til adulthood to find someone to hug me would I have fared different if I had felt cute didn’t nobody back then tell me I was cute and when I tried to rap, my voice fell mute

I look in the mirror see a gap toothed smile like Esther Rolle, a big ole gappy smile cuz when fine women ask, you know I grin awhile see ugly too in the eyes of beholders me ugly? got to be the eyes of beholders cuz tellin god’s chillun wrong: can’t get no colder

I look in the mirror see a good-lookin dude between fine sisters and my mirror- see a good lookin dude ‘sides, callin people ugly red devils kind of rude so don’t call me ugly least not to my face even if you think I ugly, then look away from my face cuz I if was-which I’m not-still ain’t no disgrace!

Principal poem
By David Keiser

I try to convey to students

The importance the ancestry of roots and trees of knowing what we grew from

I try to stoke the fire/stroke genius into sculpted bright light illuminate future possibilities of hope

Possibilities of revolutions in consciousness/in desire in need for green greed in the absolute essentials for survival

And you, guardian of horizons hammer and sickle strict like lines

And you, responsible to parents, to suits, to staff, and to students

And you, holed up, close to the front lines  behind the action

Under girding it all with tough love strong as plywood and fair as a butcher's scale

And you, postmaster general, commander in chief, dean by default, and overall Jill of all trades

And you, with all the lists and jobs and stress and signatures, you still manage to ask how
I am